TOTS STAY WITH NEGRO —WHITES UP IN ARMS

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A German school teacher and his family are reported facing expulsion from South Africa because he let his three children spend a vacation at the clay hut of their Negro nurse.

A storm raged in newspapers about the case Sunday. The teacher is Victor Niedermayer. Published accounts said officials have notified him he must leave when his visa expires June 2 on the ground the incident was an affront to South Africa's racial segregation policy.

Niedermayer was quoted as saying earlier that he saw nothing wrong in letting the children, aged four to nine — spend a holiday with their nurse, Maria. That was last December.

NEW CONGO CRISIS

Lumumba Killers Get $8,000

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Patrice Lumumba is dead, the Katanga government announced today and the African villagers who killed him have received a reward of $8,000.

'NO CONFIDENCE'

Russia Scorns UN Probe

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valeriy Zorin charged today that Patrice Lumumba was the victim of a colonialist murder and he scorned a call by UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld for a United Nations investigation.

Zorin spoke at an emergency meeting of the 11-member UN Security Council which convened in an atmosphere of crisis and shock following reports from The Congo that Lumumba, deposed premier, was killed by tribesmen after escaping from prison.

After hearing the Soviet charge the Security Council adjourned until Wednesday to let governments reappraise the situation in The Congo.

Hammarskjöld opened the meeting with a call for an impartial investigation—which UN officers in The Congo have already attempted to begin—but Zorin reacted angrily with the statement:

"We have not the slightest confidence in the secretary-general or his Congo command after all that has been committed in The Congo."

KENNEDY SHOCKED

The U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson, speaking before Zorin, noted that President Kennedy had expressed shock over Lumumba's death. Stevenson said the action shows "how far we still have to go."

'Halt Troops' UN Warning To Tshombe

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)

The United Nations has urged Katanga premier Moïse Tshombe to call off his military drive into north Katanga and warned that responsibility for any brush with UN troops "will be entirely his," a spokesman said today.

The warning was delivered in a note from Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the UN Congo mission, transmitted to UN authorities in Katanga Sunday.

The spokesman said about 2,000 of Tshombe's troops, led by European officers, now appear engaged in the thrust north, burning villages in the way.

The interior ministry of this secessionist province declared the Congo's deposed premier was "massacred Sunday morning" along with two aides said to have fled with him three days earlier.

Godefroid Munongo, the interior minister, told reporters: "I will speak frankly. If people accused us of killing Lumumba, I will reply: 'Prove it.'"

The effect of the slayings was to bring the long-brewing Congo situation to a new crisis holding the threat of civil war. It came as Katanga was flexing its military muscles with a drive which brought United Nations warning.

The interior minister declined to name the village where Lumumba died.

POSSIBLE REPRISALS

"We do not want the Africans of the tribe which killed Lumumba to be identified because they might be the subject of eventual reprisals by Lumumbists," said Munongo.

"We cannot honestly blame these people because they have rid the Congo, and the whole world, of a problem which certain people have exaggerated and a problem which menaced the existence of humanity."

"This village will be given the total of 400,000 francs ($8,000) promised by the Katanga cabinet for the capture of the three men, and I shall say no more about it."

Munongo called Lumumba a criminal responsible for tens of thousands of deaths in Kasai and Katanga provinces.

He became premier when the Congo attained independence from Belgium last June 30. Soon Soviet technicians and equipment were flowing into The Congo, along with a UN peace force of 20,000 men which Lumumba at first welcomed, then repudiated.

In September, President Joseph Kasavubu, after weeks of uncertainty, threw Lumumba out of office and sent him to jail for trial on charges of crimes against the nation.

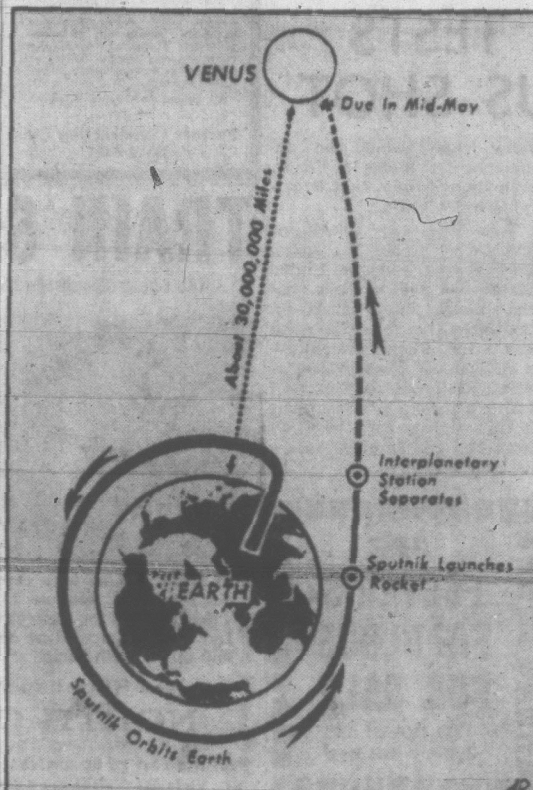

But even in detention Lumumba made his weight felt, and at the time of his death his followers were in control of about a third of The Congo.

After his arrest Lumumba was first jailed near Leopoldville by Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, The Congo's military strongman. But three weeks ago the ex-premier was brought to Katanga Province on the ground he could be detained more safely there.

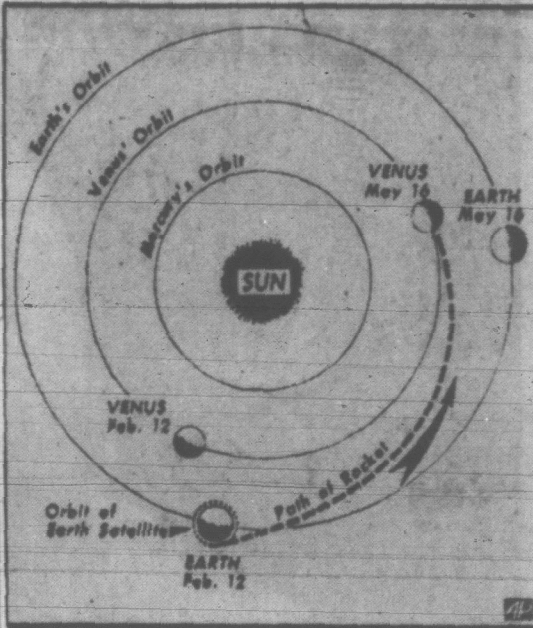

NOT UN BUSINESS

Katanga's Premier Moïse Tshombe has insisted Lumumba made a genuine escape last week. But he declared Lumumba's fate was an internal matter and none of the United Nations' business. Over the weekend he refused to cooperate with a UN team that came here from Leopoldville to investigate.

Spaceship From Red Sputnik Speeding Towards Venus

HOW IT WAS DONE — Chart above shows sequence of launchings of newest and most spectacular of Russian space shots. First a multistage rocket carried new sputnik into orbit; then a rocket was fired from the sputnik and the rocket then was separated from the space station as it headed toward Venus. 'IT'S FANTASTIC' —WEST EXPERTS

LONDON (UPI) — Western scientists today termed the Soviet Union's piggy-back rocket shot at Venus a remarkable achievement that may help plumb the mysteries of earth's cloud-covered sister planet.

"This venture demands 400 times as much precision as their previous shot at the moon," said Prof. Jan H. Oort, director of the Leyden Observatory in Holland.

"I am led to believe that the Russians must have developed a highly reliable system of guiding a rocket while it is travelling through space."

French space expert Prof. Alexandre Ananov said Soviet scientists seemed to be trying to leapfrog space achievements by "firing big space ships with room for two or three men far out into the solar system."

He said it appeared to him that the Russians might leave to the United States the task of putting the first man in space close to earth.

Finland's astronomy Prof. Gustaf Jaernfelt said the feat would be "most remarkable" if the rocket ship were able to take pictures to show what kind of a surface Venus has.

"We don't know yet whether it will succeed," he said.

Prof. A. C. Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Radio Telescope, described the shot as "fantastic."

"They have entered on an exploit which has long been expected, and good luck to them," he said.

Prof. Ananov said the Venus project had tremendous propaganda value for the Russians.

"If you demonstrate you have the technology to put a satellite into orbit around the earth and fire a rocket off that satellite at the right moment, with the right trajectory and the right velocity to hit Venus, your ability to hit any point on earth becomes all the more impressive," he said.

SKIN-DIVER

'Victim Of Own Enthusiasm'

By AB KENT

A 22-year-old father of two died in a skindiving mishap in Finlayson Arm Sunday afternoon — a "victim of his own enthusiasm."

David Dorman, 2872 Inez, was pronounced dead at Hall's Boathouse after fellow divers and Langford firemen tried for more than an hour to revive him.

He was one of a party of nine divers—seven with underwater breathing apparatus and two, including Dorman, with snorkel and face mask.

MISERY BAY
The group, members of Victoria Sea Searchers' Club, were engaged in spear-fishing in Misery Bay, about a mile seaward from Hall's Boathouse at the approaches to the Malahat.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Sea Searchers and president of Vancouver Island Skin Diving Council.

Dorman was taken from the water a few minutes after he was noticed floating face down near a rocky point on which other members of the party were sitting after their diving session at about 1.45 p.m.

AN EXPERT
Club president, Phil Poole, 30, of 332 Dunsmuir, who knew Dorman well, agreed with other divers that he was an expert although he had been diving only about two years.

"He was an athlete," Poole said. "We have observed him on many occasions and his capabilities were good. He was fearless."

"We're not medical men, but we are aware of the hazards. I knew him very well. If anything, he was a victim of his own enthusiasm," Poole said.

Poole and fellow divers Bill Fife, 21, of 962 Dingley Dell, and Bob Neill, 22, of Colwood, said Dorman practiced "hyperventilation."

"This is a skindiving term referring to slow, deep breathing on the surface while the diver is lying face down with his snorkel tube providing air supply."

THREE MINUTES
Dorman was an expert at it and was able to remain under water three minutes after clearing his lungs of carbon dioxide in this way.

Poole said from the lack of water in Dorman's lungs it appeared his throat muscles went into spasm and he suffocated from lack of oxygen rather than from drowning.

Fife said, "We think he blacked out."

The eight other divers, including Fife, were on the rocks when someone remarked that Dorman seemed to be lying still for longer than usual.

Neill went out to him in an inboard boat, then called for help when he saw Dorman's snorkel mouthpiece free from its proper place.

He hauled the diver into the boat and began applying artificial respiration, which he continued as the boat was beached.

He kept it up as one diver went to call police and ambulance and another fetched a faster boat.

After 15 minutes, Dorman was transferred to an out-boat.

'Biggest Event' Of Space Age

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — A three-quarter ton Soviet rocket ship launched from an orbiting satellite hurtled through space on a three month journey toward Venus today.

Soviet scientists said their new space vehicle will become an artificial planet circling the sun if it does not succeed in hitting Venus.

Either way, they said, the spectacular rocket may unravel some of the secrets of the earth's nearest sister planet — including whether there is life on it.

Further news of the space vehicle was expected when it has covered about 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 miles. Some scientists here believe Venus will be about 62,500,000 miles from earth when the vehicle approaches it.

The Russians said there was no life aboard the vehicle.

The Soviet Union's 1,420-pound "interplanetary station" was due to rendezvous with Venus in the second half of May following its novel launching from an orbiting earth satellite Sunday.

Many scientists thought the new Soviet space vehicle may be carrying telephotographic equipment to send back pictures of cloud-veiled Venus. A Russian spaceship already has photographed the hidden side of the moon.

At the moment Venus is one of its closest approaches to the earth.

Western and Soviet scientists said the system indicated remarkably advanced guidance systems and powerful rockets. The method had been discussed for years but so far as was known this was the first time it had been tried.

It was noted that a report from the United States Sunday night said the U.S. does not expect to attempt a planetary launching from an earth satellite for another 18 months to two years. The U.S. has tried vainly to send satellites into orbit around Venus.

SPORTING MOTIVE QUERIED

'Search My Home'—Peer

STAMFORD, England (Reuters) — A British peer Sunday invited an American firm which is investigating his connections with Communist China to search his stately home.

Lord David Burghley, 56-year-old Marquess of Exeter, said a New York firm called Industrial Brigades and headed by retired Brig. Gen. John Grombach, had called in a London detective agency to aid its investigation.

Burghley said the investigation was being carried out because as president of the International Amateur Athletic Association he helped gain the affiliation of the Peking Athletic Association with the IAAA.

In New York, Gen. Grombach, a member of the United States Olympic Committee and secretary of the International Fencing Federation, said the investigation was to determine whether Burghley benefited from any trade connections with Communist China.

Burghley said his support of the Communist Chinese affiliation was purely for sporting reasons.

Burghley was educated at Eton and afterwards became an officer in the Brigade of Guards. He won an Olympic gold medal in 1928 in the 400-metre hurdles.

'New Stage in Conquest of Space'

As Western scientists warmly praised the launching of the Venus probe as a major achievement in space technology, leading Soviet astronomer Boris Kukarkin said it marks a "new stage in man's conquest of inter-planetary space."

It brought closer "the fulfillment of man's dream to visit and investigate the planets," he said.

The launching also warmed up the space race. Sunday's Venus shot was rated the most sensational achievement in the field since Russia sent the first Sputnik into space in October, 1957.

It was noted that a report from the United States Sunday night said the U.S. does not expect to attempt a planetary launching from an earth satellite for another 18 months to two years. The U.S. has tried vainly to send satellites into orbit around Venus.

Fat Head Hurts Us — Hees

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada is like a boxer who has let himself get "fat and sloppy and out of condition" and must get back in shape in order to compete on the world market, Trade Minister Hees said Sunday night.

In the postwar period, before the West European economies recovered, it was easy for Canada to sell goods and the country got to be like a boxer who gets to be champ and gets a swelled head," Mr. Hees said.

The boxer lets himself get out of condition and then "a lean and hungry fighter comes along and knocks his head off and he has to get back into shape, and that's what Canada has to do."

He was addressing students from about 20 Ontario and Quebec colleges at the closing dinner of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation's two-day Macdonald-Cartier conference.

Mr. Hees said the government is doing everything possible to stimulate Canadian trade abroad, but it is up to management and labor to make goods which can compete.

Canadian goods lagged particularly in design, and good design was essential if Canadian products were to compete with lower-priced foreign goods.

SALES PROVIDE CURE

Only increased sales can cure unemployment, Mr. Hees said, and it is up to the Canadian people themselves to provide the cure. The government could not do it alone.

Saturday, External Affairs Minister Green told them Canada could not take up a neutralist stance without losing her self-respect.

He said some Canadian critics suggested Canada would have more influence in world councils if she were neutral, "but we wouldn't have any more friends if we were and some of our old friends would wonder what had happened to us."

His statements were loudly applauded by the delegates, who later passed a resolution urging Canada to stay out of the neutrals' camp "while striving vigorously for world disarmament."

COLD TOWARDS CHINA

But in passing, Mr. Green also threw some cold water on another resolution approved by the convention—that Canada immediately take steps to recognize Red China and get her seated in the United Nations.

Referring to the resolution, Mr. Green said he understood the delegates had "settled" one of Canada's external affairs problems "but I'm not sure you've settled it in the right way."

The resolution passed by the convention called for recognition to be conditional on continued recognition of the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa.

One-Man Decisions

MR. FLEMING'S PROPOSED legislation to change the tariff regulations promises a great deal of trouble for Canadian importers and higher prices for Canadian consumers. He will alter the provisions of the Tariff Act which heretofore have contained specific, certifiable definitions of goods "of a class or kind made in Canada" and substitute a classification based in the final analysis on the minister's opinion.

Goods defined as "of a class or kind made in Canada" carry higher protective tariffs than others. Therefore by reserving for ministerial decision the classification of goods, Mr. Fleming is in effect reserving to himself the right to set tariffs. The revenue-raising function is to this extent removed from Parliament. It becomes one-man law. And there is no appeal.

Under the present law, goods are "of a class or kind made in Canada" if 10 per cent of the market is supplied by Canadian producers. Under the amended legislation, as discussed in an Ottawa dispatch elsewhere on this page today, the minister can declare almost any article to be of this type. He need only decide that Canadian producers could, if necessary, supply 10 per cent of the market—the production facilities need not even be in existence. Obviously this leaves a vast area open entirely to the judgment of the minister and his advisers.

The same arbitrary type of decision applies to Conservative dumping duty regulations. Whereas the old Liberal criterion for the value on which duty would be paid was the market price of the goods in the country of origin—a figure easily ascertained—the new system would leave it to the minister to set this value as one which he feels would represent a reasonable cost of production plus profit—an entirely arbitrary evaluation.

The old legislation permits court appeals from tariff board decisions; the new law will make no such provision.

To take the tariff-making power in part from Parliament and place it in the hands of one man is a direct negation of Canadian parliamentary tradition. Equally the new system is an evasion of the moral obligations of GATT—the world-wide agreements on tariffs and trade practices—even though it may be argued that the wording of the agreement is not transgressed.

Domestically the new system of rate-setting can create nothing but confusion and expense; internationally this method of tariff-making by indirect means can only raise foreign doubts of Canada's integrity in trade matters—doubts that may be followed by active steps toward retaliation.

New Exit From the Teepee

MR. FRANK CALDER, THE first and only native elected to British Columbia's legislature, is in a unique position to press his argument that the province should assume jurisdiction over Indians here.

The British Columbia native—not a treaty Indian, as is the case in other parts of Canada—is placing increasing reliance on the province for education, for social services, for the solution of land problems and for other matters of direct concern to him.

His future, says Mr. Calder, depends on a closer formal alliance between the Indian and the province without recourse to the federal department as an intermediary. Conditions are bringing the native and the provincial authorities together in practical affairs. The legal change, he believes, should be made accordingly.

Mr. Calder points to the difficulties in the way of "solving" all Indian problems by enfranchising the native. By that process he ceases to be an Indian subject to special restrictions and special concessions and becomes a full citizen. But, says the member of the legislature, the change is too drastic for many. The older people are not ready for it and the regulations which separate the enfranchised person from his people on the reservation are emotionally unattractive.

Acknowledging these facts, Mr. Calder says "the Indian himself must meet the problem more than half way, if he is going to compete in this world."

The prospect is not so dim as it once was. The younger generation, including boys and girls who are going on to public high school and receiving the education available to all competent young British Columbians, are in favor of this integration, he states.

The approach, however, must be gradual. The older people cannot be rushed. The majority of Indians are not willing, and often not ready, to make the transition to full citizenship. But the trend is under way, aided by closer contact with services provided to an ever increasing degree by the province.

Cooling the Firebrands

PRESIDENT KENNEDY HAS come under some criticism for his recent order restraining highly-placed service officers from indulging in public criticism of the Soviet Union. The new "gag" policy became clear, it is claimed, when Admiral A. A. Burke, chief of naval operations, was told to edit a proposed speech containing a sharp attack on Russia.

Surely such an order is a logical and necessary step. For a number of years relations between the United States and the Soviet Union have been repeatedly exacerbated by the remarks of American generals and admirals who boast of their country's preparedness and its readiness to "take on" the Russians. Such inflammatory remarks have no place in the critical diplomatic climate of today, nor have army, navy or air force officers a right publicly to proclaim or amend the policies of their Government.

One in Ten Inside?

MOST PEOPLE WILL AGREE with the generalization that "it's a crazy world." Not so many will take at face value the common observation that one person in ten can expect to be a mental home patient sometime during his lifetime.

Mr. Andrew Chatten, executive director of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, has applied this statistic to Greater Victoria. On this basis, about 14,000 Greater Victorians may expect to be treated sooner or later—a rather generous estimate even counting in tourists and visiting Legislative members.

In a very strict sense, perhaps, everyone could do with a little psychiatric help at times. But where do you draw the line between a normal person with a temporary worry, and a mentally ill person who will get worse unless help is given? Surely 10 per cent of us do not fall within the latter category. Surely one Greater Victoria home in ten does not house persons who should be reserving ward space in an institution.

What Goes Into the Silence?

QUEENSLAND AND NEW South Wales are being praised far from home for their new legislation muting private radios on trains.

In the former, radios are banned altogether. In the latter they must be toned down to a point at which they do not disturb other passengers.

This is fine as far as it goes. There aren't many annoyances worse than a bleating transistor job bumping out rhythms unattractive to a large part of any assembly of people. When that assembly happens to be a captive audience in a train, it deserves protection.

But once relative quiet is restored, how do Queensland and New South Wales save the passenger from the interminable conversations of fellow-travellers intent on avoiding personal boredom by boring others?

'Now maybe we can get the radio fixed.'

FROM WASHINGTON

They Made a Mockery of Free Enterprise

SOMETIMES there is a justified exception to the rule that a judge should avoid making a speech when he passes sentence. The sentence usually carries its own message. But the department of justice is happy that Judge Ganey of Philadelphia departed from this rule when he sentenced seven executives of the nation's largest electrical firms to jail terms and imposed fines on 44 companies totalling almost two million dollars for anti-trust violations.

Judge Ganey went to the heart of the matter when he said that the actions of these defendants in restraint of trade, made a mockery of the free enterprise system.

It was exactly this charge which was first advanced against the executives by the anti-trust division of the department of justice.

Unfortunately there is a sad footnote to this whole affair. The charges were brought as a result of an investigation conducted by Mr. Bicks, an assistant attorney-general who made a reputation in Washington by his opposition to trusts and combines. Although he was nominated by President Eisenhower, the Republicans in the Senate, aided by a few important Democrats, refused to confirm him.

He has now left Washington to engage in private practice. But he has left behind him as an enduring monument this prosecution of the electrical firms, the largest and most important case ever brought against great corporations.

There is no doubt that Mr. Bicks was punished by the Senate because he believes that the Sherman law should be enforced rigorously so as to ensure maximum competition. The department of justice's delight in the Philadelphia verdict suggests that there will be no change in its philosophy or its conduct.

The same emphasis on the Sherman law will guide it during the Kennedy administration no matter who becomes the new head of the anti-trust division.

The spokesmen for General Electric and Westinghouse have once again emphasized that the executives found guilty by the court were acting in violation of clear directives issued by the companies. The verdicts imposed by the court cannot be appealed. No one believes that President Kennedy will exercise executive clemency.

The attitude of the Kennedy administration to the Sherman act will provide the crucial test of its belief in competition.

Many business leaders are arguing now that the number of bankruptcies, already running at an alarming rate, will increase unless firms can reach some arrangement on prices and other conditions of competition.

This argument has already been pressed with such vigor on the president's chief economic advisers that Democratic senators like Douglas and Kefauver and Gore—who make loyalty to the Sherman act an article of their political faith—have felt constrained to warn Mr. Kennedy that he would lose important elements of public support if he neglected the interests of the consumer in favor of privileged business groups.

These senators have also argued that one of the great curses of the American economy in recent years has been the spread of "administered prices" fixed by the strongest member of an industry and effectively followed by other members who prefer a safe share of the market to the rigors and rewards of free competition.

They have told Mr. Kennedy that it would be easier to halt the trend towards inflation if a sustained campaign were mounted against administered prices.

Thus far the whole matter is under review by the president's council of economic advisers. But the reaction in Washington to the verdict in Philadelphia suggests that the Kennedy administration has no intention of putting the Sherman act into cold storage.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Thoughts While Sitting on a Powder Keg

THERE is quite a national debate raging at present on the topic of defence, particularly defence which involves nuclear weapons.

I am all for world disarmament. Since I haven't any real plans for aggression against any other country I don't feel that I need any aggressive weapons. Likewise I don't need any lectures designed to put me in a non-aggressive frame of mind. But how about the other fellow? Does he feel the same way about it? I would be a lot more comfortable if, instead of trying to persuade me not to maintain armaments, the persuaders would direct their energies to the other fellow, about whose intentions I am not clear.

On defensive armaments it is a different story. Unless there is a full guarantee that disarmament is complete and sincere on all sides, a country takes an awful chance not to keep up such defences as it can in today's turbulent world.

Of course, complete disarmament without any guarantee of complementary action by other countries is a highly idealistic thing. An individual can decide to live that way, and be respected for it. Perhaps even mourned, if he guessed wrong.

But, can any man or group of elected men make that decision for their country as a whole? Can any man risk going down in history as the man who made the colossal goof that resulted in his nation being wiped out? In such circumstances any human being would play safe, and retain at least some national arms.

One of the problems of disarmament for Canada is the country's relatively small population. We aren't big enough or rich enough to be powerful. Hence any Canadian disarmament proposal, however sincere and lofty its ideal, runs the risk of being thought hypocritical.

Would we disarm because it's the "right thing"? Or because we secretly begrudge the cost of armaments and take cover in an ideal?

Would we disarm to show peace-loving leadership to other nations? Or would it be because we secretly know that the United States must in any case defend our section of the continent in any major war?

It may be comforting to make weakness a virtue if you are weak anyway. But is it much protection? And is it fair to your allies, who must carry your load?

No Way Out

The nuclear age is here whether we like it or not. No nation can vote itself out of the nuclear age. The next generation will not be as frightened of it as we are—they may even get around to mastering it.

In a nuclear age, it seems to me the only thing to do is nuclear. If the cavern had said, "It's no use trying to dig caves in the cliffs. Those dinosaurs will get us anyway," the race wouldn't have survived to its present glorious fruition. They mastered their age, and we must too.

Admittedly we cannot afford to compete in producing such arms, but we can co-operate with friendly nations which have the capacity. Our direct contribution can be in other forms.

But the unanswered question is whether non-nuclear love and trust are qualities which greatly impress nations from which we fear future aggression.

A long line of sitting ducks is more likely to be found in the shooting gallery than in the genealogical tables. History seems to indicate that sitting ducks, even shining examples, sooner or later get it in the neck. Their ideals may live on as ideals, but the ducks die as ducks.

On Both Sides

This does not constitute an argument for larger armaments. It is essentially an argument for mutually reduced armaments—but the key word is mutually.

The world at present is in a state of jockeying among the great—and they are newly great—powers. Part of the jockeying procedure is to appear as powerful as possible so that your eventual position will be as favorable as possible. But this phase will not continue indefinitely. When a little more stable situation has evolved both sides will be better able to agree to a lessening of armaments tension.

Meanwhile, the idea of total human extinction through nuclear war is not completely abhorrent—so long as it doesn't happen. It can be a very effective deterrent.

Granted that any major war would be a nuclear one, and that any nuclear war could destroy the world, we must also assume that no nation, particularly one seeking self-aggrandisement, will want to risk the global destruction that would include itself.

Negotiation thus seems to offer a better hope of a mutually satisfactory outcome than does a shining example of unarmed idealism. And equally in negotiations depends a great deal on equality in strength.

OTTAWA:

'My Word Is Law'

By GRANT DEXTER

THE first major conflict between the Conservative government and the Liberal opposition to arise in the present session of Parliament concerns the "made-in-Canada" sections of the Customs Tariff Act.

The amendment proposed by the Diefenbaker government in the baby budget on December 20 will be just as controversial as the amendment to the dumping duty sections of the Customs Act in 1958.

The two-made-in-Canada and the dumping sections are inseparable.

This conflict between Liberals and Conservatives demonstrates, clearly and unmistakably, the difference between the traditional Liberal policy of low tariff and the greatest possible trade and the traditional Conservative policy of high tariff, of protectionism regardless of the damage done to trade.

It is sometimes said, usually by Conservative politicians in the low-tariff prairie provinces, that there is little difference between the tariff policies of Conservatives and Liberals; that the tariff controversy is meaningless shadow-boxing.

The purpose of such talk is to deceive the public, to cause low-tariff electors to believe that the Liberal party only talks about low tariffs; that it does not practice in office what it advocates in opposition.

Untrue Statement

This is an untrue statement and the made-in-Canada, dump duty controversy, going back to the 1870s, proves it. The present controversy extends over 90 years, over thousands of pages of Hansard. To speak only of this century, six times (1904, 1921-22, 1930, 1936, 1958 and now in 1960) the customs and customs tariff laws have been completely changed.

The Liberals have enacted low tariff, the Conservatives have reversed the Liberals and enacted high tariff.

In the days of Meighen and Bennett, the Conservatives proceeded openly, honestly, in full public view. The Diefenbaker government is proceeding in an oblique, tricky way to put in high protection.

As Hon. J. W. Pickersgill said in the budget debate, the methods used are "sly and furtive." But they will be none the less effective in destroying trade.

The dispute between the two parties is much more important than a difference over the amount of protection to be given any industry or group of industries. There are 857 items in the tariff. They cover the entire range of goods that cross our frontier.

The made-in-Canada and the dump duty sections cover a vast part of all goods. These measures affect thousands of items and, therefore, are of much greater importance than any group of items.

What is the dispute between the two parties?

A detailed explanation would involve many technicalities and difficult points of tariff administration. These will be covered in due course. But for the moment the difference can be put directly and simply.

Strict Definitions

The Liberals have always stood for strict, statutory definitions of made-in-Canada and of dumping. Liberals have insisted that there be no discretion given to the minister of national revenue or his officials—no arbitrary power.

Made-in-Canada must mean that not less than 10 per cent of the Canadian market for any article is being filled by made-in-Canada goods. Dumping, according to the Liberals, must mean the sale of goods in Canada at a price lower than the fair market value in the country of origin.

Both these definitions depend upon facts, not opinions. And the facts can be ascertained and proved.

In both made-in-Canada and dumping, the Liberals set the tariff board—a semi-judicial body—above the customs officials. Anyone could appeal to the tariff board and from the tariff board to the exchequer court and, finally, to the Supreme Court of Canada. The decisions, all along the line, were binding on the customs administration.

The Conservative party stood for an entirely different policy. Dumping, in the Conservative view, consists in selling goods in Canada at a price lower than the cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

Deciding Cost

And who is to decide what is the cost of production? The minister of national revenue, whose decision is final. No appeal can be taken to the tariff board or to the courts.

Exactly the same is true of made-in-Canada. Dump duties apply only to made-in-Canada goods. There would be no sense in applying them to goods not made in Canada.

Under Conservative law an article becomes made-in-Canada if the minister of national revenue says it is. This is not a decision which requires the slightest proof. No 10-per-cent home production is required. There is no appeal to the tariff board or to the courts.

By the exercise of arbitrary, irresponsible power, the minister of national revenue is given authority to declare any article he pleases to be of a class or kind made-in-Canada.

Higher Rates

The tariff on articles not made-in-Canada is low. The tariff on articles which are made-in-Canada is high. On machinery, for example, the rates are 7½ and 22½ per cent. If it is not made-in-Canada it is liable to dumps.

Under Conservative policy, in direct contradiction to Liberal policy, all these vital decisions are placed at the uncontrolled discretion of the minister. If he says an article is "made-in-Canada," his word is final. No questions may be asked. No appeal is permitted.

This is the difference between the two parties. In 1958, the Conservatives, after a bitter fight in Parliament, put in their policy on dump duties.

Now they are doing so with "made-in-Canada."

Thanks for the Help

On behalf of the Windsor, Willows, St. Phillips and Garry Oak Scout and Cub Packs, I would like to thank you for all the coverage you gave us in the advertising of our bottle drive last month. It was a very satisfactory drive and I am sure that its success was partly due to the "plugs" you gave us in your daily paper.

Our organization always finds the personnel at the Daily Times so very helpful and co-operative in any projects that we might endeavor to undertake and we do most sincerely thank you.

Food or Polaris?

Reading the Times, two items caught my attention which I think should give us cause to reflect. First, the U.S.A. will now go ahead and build five more nuclear-driven submarines with Polaris missiles at a cost $5 hundred million dollars. Secondly, the other item reported disastrous crop failures in China, millions facing starvation.

Would it not be a good idea to build one submarine less and send $100 million worth of surplus foods as a gift to China? Foolish, impractical, maybe, but is it commonsense and practical to keep on getting ready for a third world war, which will probably wipe out half the earth? And it would need only one shot from a submarine to start the holocaust.

ACCOUNTANT.

Boy Drowns In Rapids At Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP) — A four-year-old boy was swept to his death in the rain-swollen Millstone Creek here Saturday despite attempts by his father and another adult to save him.

Colin Roderick MacIsaac, son of Nanaimo lawyer Roderick MacIsaac, fell from a narrow foot bridge which spans the creek in the city's Bowen Park.

He was swept from the grasp of Bob Golding, 30, who plunged immediately into the river after him, and tossed along to his death in the rocky rapids and falls.

SLIPPED

MacIsaac also plunged in immediately in a vain effort to rescue his son. Both he and Golding were also caught by the current and whirled along more than a quarter of a mile of rapids.

The two men, Colin, and three other youngsters were strolling through the park and the boys started to run across the bridge. Colin slipped and fell under the rail.

His body was recovered below the first falls in the park.

Golding and MacIsaac both suffered multiple cuts and bruises. MacIsaac was kept in hospital, but Golding was released after treatment.

THREE MONTHS

Mother Jailed For Beating Stepdaughter

UCLUELET (CP) — A 24-year-old expectant mother was sentenced Saturday to three months in jail for causing bodily harm to her three-year-old stepdaughter.

The prosecution charged a week earlier at her trial that Mrs. Margaret Hill lifted the child by her hair when she fell down, and forced her to sit in cold water for 30 minutes as punishment.

The girl, Leslie Hill, is being treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital at Victoria. She suffered loss of speech, paralysis of the right side of the body, a bleeding ear, and multiple facial bruises.

Mrs. Hill will serve her sentence at Oakalla Prison.

DOCTOR COMMENDED

Magistrate Joseph Webb said he would have imposed a longer sentence, but for the fact that Mrs. Hill was four months pregnant.

"I would not want your baby to be born in prison," he said.

The magistrate commended a doctor, who visited the child, for reporting the matter to police. He said such assaults sometimes are never made known to authorities and parents must be made to realize that abuse of defenceless children will not be condoned.

A hospital spokesman said it is too early yet to know whether the girl will regain control of the right side of her body.

Another of Mrs. Hill's stepchildren, two-year-old Larry, is a ward of the welfare department and an 18-month-old son, Linden, is being cared for by grandparents.

Among the 9 ingredients in today's Super Shell is a special component called Platformate. It packs more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline. This extra energy turns up as extra mileage.

Read how Shell isolates this extraordinary ingredient by re-forming gasoline with pressure, heat—and platinum.

TODAY'S SUPER SHELL promises to deliver top performance. It could not keep that promise unless it contained Platformate.

It takes Shell one million dollars' worth of platinum catalyst to produce this extraordinary ingredient. But, fortunately for your pocketbook and ours, this precious catalyst can be used over and over again.

Frightful ordeal adds mileage

The whole platinum re-forming process, which gives Platformate its strange name, puts gasoline through a frightful ordeal.

Pressures up to 600 pounds per square inch and temperatures up to 1000 degrees literally tear it apart and then re-form it into super-energy components—such as benzene, toluene and xylene.

These three components, between them, release seven per cent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline.

But make no mistake. This is not raw, untamed energy. Far from it.

The super-energy of Platformate is harnessed by the eight other ingredients in Super Shell, where it behaves so well you scarcely know it's in your tank—until your extra mileage begins to register. After that, there is no doubt.

So much for one extraordinary ingredient in today's Super Shell. Here are some interesting facts about the other eight. What they are, what they do—and how they do it.

"The fifth wheel." Shell test drivers add a fifth wheel to their cars for precise distance measurement, during mileage tests. It helps them record performance to a decimal point.

Ingredient #2 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life

Super Shell now contains an even better version of this famous additive. It was originally developed for use in aviation gasoline.

TCP* additive can give your car up to 15 per cent more power; 17 extra miles per tankful; and make your plugs last twice as long.

Today's aviation-grade TCP does this by neutralizing the harmful effects of engine deposits. It stops them from glowing when hot—a major cause of power loss.

It also stops them from diverting your spark—a major cause of "missing."

Ingredient #3 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 1000-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier, lighter ones.

The result is a high-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—a substance that has the mysterious ability to alter molecules without changing itself.

Ingredient #4 is heavy alkanes—for both power and economy at all speeds

Shell scientists will tell you that gasoline can be too sensitive.

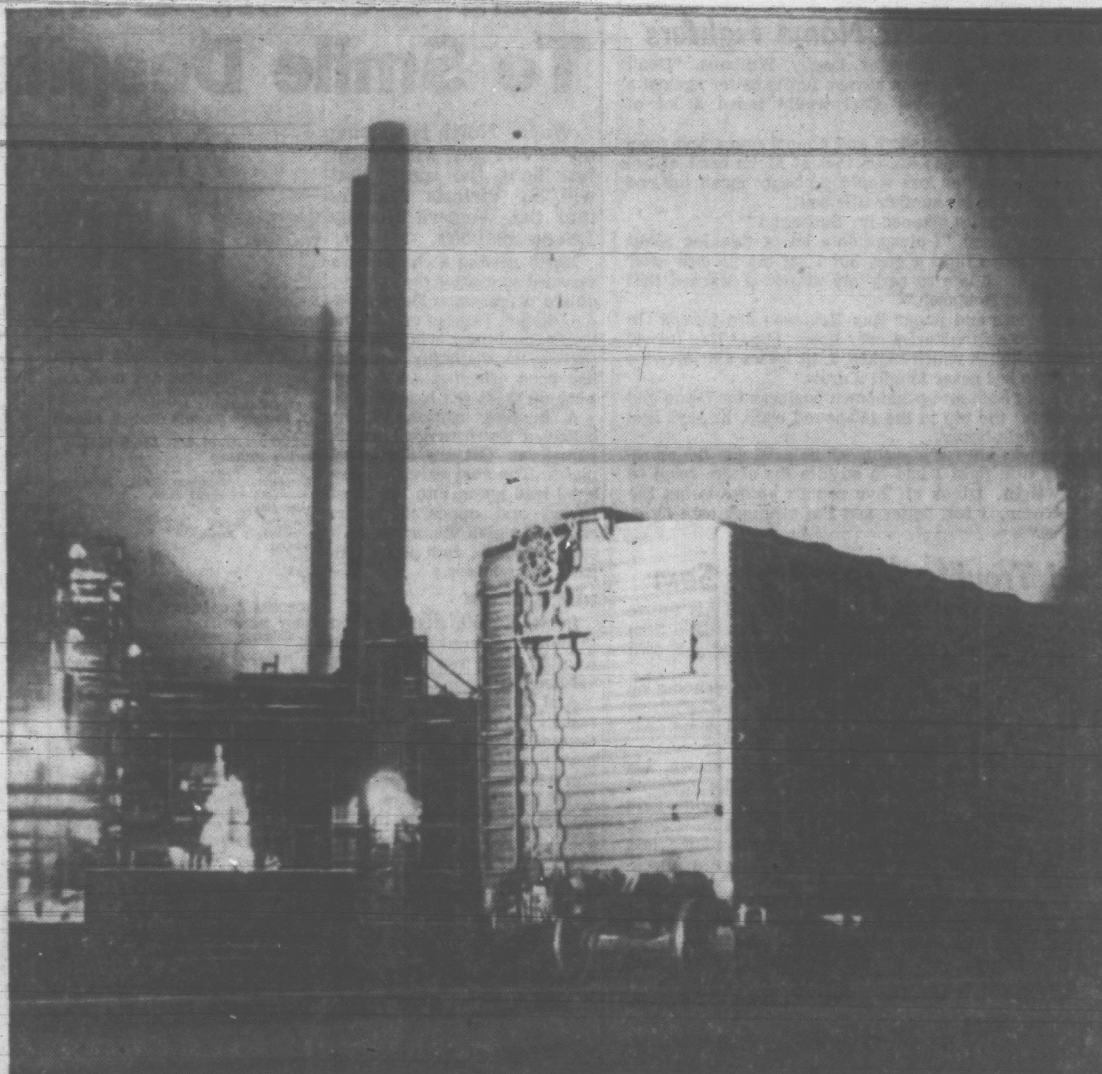

That's their unflattering description of a "touchy" gasoline that performs well enough when you're driving slowly, but causes knock and loss of power when you speed up.

So they put heavy alkanes into Super Shell. This ingredient is prized for its insensitivity. It keeps octane ratings high enough to give you plenty of knock-free power at all speeds.

NOTE: Heavy alkanes also have the advantage of lowering your fuel consumption. Your engine can use them up slowly—and still give you all the power you need.

Ingredient #5 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might suppose that two high-

This is where Platformate is made. The "platforming" reactors are primed with a carload of platinum catalyst. During the re-charging process, a tent is erected at the reactor to protect the catalyst from wind and rain. At half-a-million dollars a carload, it is precious stuff.

octane ingredients are enough to give you knock-free performance. But Shell scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock mix. A mix, so effective, one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by seven points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

Ingredient #6 is butane for quick starts on icy mornings

By itself, butane is so volatile that it would actually boil in your refrigerator. In Super Shell, it helps your engine fire in seconds. Think what this means in cold weather. Your battery is relieved of strain—and so is your patience.

NOTE: Super Shell is primed with butane all year round. In winter, Shell scientists simply increase the quick-start dose.

Ingredient #7 is mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups on cold days

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split logs into kindling to start a log fire.

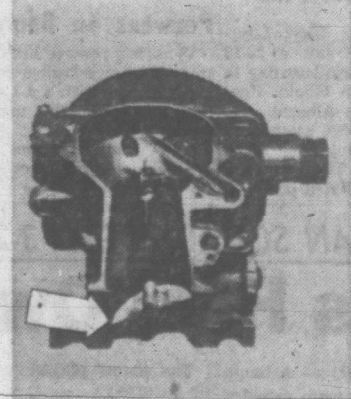

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" to quick-firing "kindling."

NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #8 is an "anti-icer" to stop stalling due to carburetor icing

Super Shell's formula is adjusted up to eight times a year for your area to beat the weather. Whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, an anti-ice ingredient is added.

Why add anti-icer at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can choke your engine dead.

Ingredient #9 is gum preventive to keep the fuel system clean

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored. This can clog carburetors, fuel lines, pumps. With Super Shell you needn't worry. A special gum preventive does the trick.

It acts like a policeman controlling a mob. Keeps an eye on unstable elements—stops them from clotting and forming gum.

Super Shell makes gummed-up engines a thing of the past.

Test Super Shell for yourself

Try Super Shell next time you fill up. You'll soon feel and hear a difference in the way your engine runs. That difference is top performance.

BOBO WILL BE GUEST AT HOCKEY OFFERING

Former world middleweight boxing king Carl "Bobo" Olson will be on ice tonight, but it doesn't figure to help Floyd Buchanan.

Olson, who faces the Los Angeles light-heavyweight in the main event of Thursday's professional boxing program at Memorial Arena, is scheduled to drop the puck to start the second game of tonight's Commercial Hockey League twin bill at the arena.

The game, between Navy and Port Alberni, is scheduled to start about 8:30.

Olson, who arrived in Victoria Sunday afternoon, jogged through some roadwork early this morning and expected to get in a bit of sparring at Work Point Barracks this afternoon.

Bobo plans to follow the same schedule Tuesday and the public is invited to attend his workout at the Army gymnasium at 3 p.m.

The 24-year-old Buchanan is slated to arrive Tuesday.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

When Bobo Olson clenches that right fist and says he has a good chance to blast his way to a bout for the light-heavyweight title, you have to agree with him. He looks capable and sounds convincing.

And, it might be added, a guy who gets his exercise punching typewriter keys has no business arguing with a 176-pounder who is closing in on the milestone of 100 professional fights, even with a slight pull in the weights.

Olson, who steps through the ropes at Memorial Arena Thursday night for his 98th punching payday, checked into Victoria Sunday. In typical fashion, the balding brawler was fretting more about his car than about Floyd Buchanan, the Los Angeles light-heavyweight he tackles in the main event of promoter Bert Smith's five-bout card, which will bring pro boxing back to town after a two-year absence.

Bobo admits he worries most about little things. For instance, he has a habit of fretting over such things as his manager's sniffling seconds before the bell sounds to start a bout. Right now, the Hawaii-born former world middleweight champion is concerned about his big, shiny Cadillac, which developed rear-wheel miseries during Sunday's trip from Portland and barely made it off the ferry.

But that doesn't mean Olson thinks he'll be able to cakewalk past Buchanan. "I've watched him in three bouts," says Bobo. "He's real eager and likes to come in a lot. He can take punishment and could be hard to beat."

Go Better Against Name Fighters

"And," chimed in manager Denny Williams, "Don't forget a fellow like Buchanan always fights better against a name fighter. A win over Carl would mean a lot of prestige."

Olson, an intelligent talker and almost unmarked from his long ring career, also knows that at 31 he can't afford any mistakes. Another loss would probably mean the end of any hopes he has for another title bout.

Has he any tactics planned for Buchanan?

"No," says Olson. "I always do a lot of thinking about how I am going to fight a guy, but I set my pattern after the fight starts. I like to vary my attack. I learned that from Moore and Robinson."

Archie Moore and Sugar Ray Robinson are two of the seven men who own victories over Bobo. Sugar Ray turned the trick four times which makes it 10 losses and 87 wins for Olson, who has never fought a draw.

Boxing has been an up-and-down business for Olson and although he hit the top in the 160-pound class, he says he's happier as a light-heavy.

"Weight was always a problem," he said, "on the morning of every title fight I had to go into the steam room to make the weight. I took off five pounds before losing the title to Robinson. I feel better and I'm stronger as a light-heavyweight."

Settled Troubles With Uncle Sam

Also helping Bobo's outlook is the fact that his future appears reasonably secure. Tax troubles with Uncle Sam have been ironed out, and he has just opened his own used-car business in Portland.

"I'll probably fight a couple more years, depending on the breaks," he said. "I've never been in better condition and I'd like one more crack at a title. It could come next summer, but I've got to keep winning."

Outside of the shot at Harold Johnson's crown, his ambition is to get a crack at Jesse Bowdrey, Willie Pastrano or Doug Jones. Possible dates are a bout with Eric Schoepner in Germany and a London scrap with Mike Holt, who took a thumping from Olson in Johannesburg last summer. But he is particularly eager to avenge a knock-out by Jones.

"Some people say Carl can't take a punch," commented manager Williams, a Portland car dealer. "He's been knocked out four times, but just look at the men that stopped him—Ray Robinson, Archie Moore, Pat McMurry and Doug Jones."

Moore was in his prime as the light-heavyweight champion. Robinson was one of the greatest fighters of our time. McMurry was a full-scale heavyweight and Carl had no business being in the same ring with him. Jones is a terrific puncher with a great knockout record. Since he beat Carl last summer, none of the light-heavyweights will fight him. They're all afraid of him."

Olson, owning a sense of humor and a passion for playing cards, says his toughest battles were with Moore, Robinson, "the smartest all-round fighter," and Turpin, the lion-hearted Britisher who refused to stay down when floored four times while losing the middleweight crown to Bobo.

Although Buchanan doesn't figure to be as rugged, he might turn out to be a rugged obstacle in the pugilistic path Olson hopes is leading to another world championship scrap. Only time will tell how far Bobo can still go, but we might get an idea of his destination come Thursday night.

Vic High Takes Over Senior Girls' Throne

Victoria High knocked off the defending champions in the final round Saturday night, clipping Mount Douglas 31-27 to win the lower island senior girls' high school basketball tournament at Royal Oak.

Sue Mason tossed in 15 points to pace the Vics in the nip-and-tuck struggle. Pat Donaldson fired 12 points for Mount Douglas.

Esquimalt earned the right to join the two finalists in the Vancouver Island tourney by defeating Royal Oak 27-17. Esquimalt's Helen Pantan was the game's top sniper with 13 points.

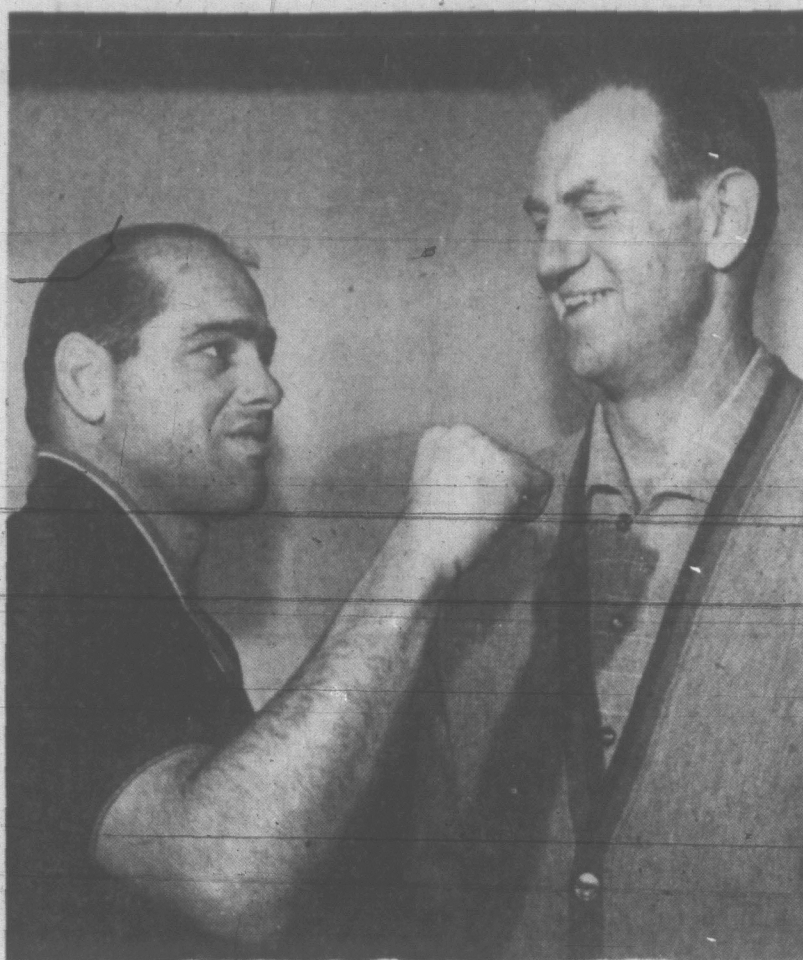

Mount View, getting a 21-point effort from Marilyn Hughes, drubbed Oak Bay 44-24 in the consolation final and North Saanich took seventh place with a 30-12 triumph over Belmont.

The girls' island tournament is scheduled Feb. 24 at North Saanich High School.

In the lower island boys' junior high school tourney at Oak Bay Junior High, Lansdowne squeezed out a 22-19 win over Oak Bay Saturday to advance to the island final next weekend in Alberni.

St. Louis College scampered to a 51-11 triumph over Elizabeth Fisher of Belmont in a game to decide third place.

TAKE A GOOD LOOK!

Able to smile because he knows former middleweight is only fooling, Times sports editor Doug Peden gets close-up look at right fist Carl "Bobo" Olson hopes will produce victory in main event of professional boxing card at Memorial Arena

REASONS ARE MORE AND NORTH

Cat Coach Can Afford To Smile Despite Loss

Wayne North is shaping up as the guy who might just light the spark that will lift Victoria Cougars into the Western Hockey League playoffs.

North getting a chance at a forward spot after the Cats acquired defenceman Dave Amadio, doesn't rate as one of the loop's smoothest wingers, but there's no disputing that he has been effective since stepping up from the blue line.

A bustling skater, Wayne collected his high goal in six games at Calgary Saturday night. The goal gave Cougars a 4-3 lead going into the third period and appeared to be enough to give Victoria a decision over the first-place Calgary Stampede.

NOT ENOUGH

But it wasn't. Stamps fired three unanswered goals in the third to skate away with a 6-4 verdict.

And if there was any other reason for Cougar coach George Agar to smile, it might have been the fact that winger Jim Moro has finally relocated the nets. Moro, who started off the season in fine fashion, ended a 28-game scoreless streak by scoring two of Victoria's other goals. The fourth went to centre Gerry Goyer, his 23rd of the campaign.

Sid Finney was Calgary's big gun, figuring in four goals, including two by ex-Cougar Don Wilson. Wally Hergesheimer, Ron Leopold, Gord Vejpravna and John Kosianiec counted the others for Calgary.

Cougars meet the Stamps again Tuesday night and then wrap up their final Prairie jaunt by facing the Flyers in Edmonton on Wednesday.

Veteran netminder Harry Lumley enjoyed some semblance of a defence in spots Sunday night and though forced to handle 44 shots, guided Winnipeg Warriors to a 1-1 overtime tie with Portland Buckaroos.

It was a turnaround performance for Warriors, who were bombed 11-1 by Seattle Saturday night. In Saturday's other game, Larry Cahan's third-period goal gave Vancouver Canucks a 2-1 victory over Spokane Comets.

Peewees on Beam

Victoria's peewee hockey all-stars outlasted Ladner Sunday and finished with a 4-1 exhibition win over the mainland team.

Don Pletch scored three goals and Johnny Knowles one for Victoria.

Totems Collect Tourney Crown

Victoria High Totems have served notice that they should be the team to beat in next weekend's lower-Island high school basketball tournament.

Playing at their home court Saturday night, the Totems spotted Oak Bay a 9-4 lead in the opening quarter and battled back for 43-35 triumph in the final game of the annual Victoria Interscholastic hoop tourney to win the H. L. Smith Trophy.

The big story behind the lottery victory was their control of the backboards. The Vics consistently gathered in rebounds from both ends to earn extra chances at the Oak Bay hoop.

Bob Harris, who took home the award as the tournament's outstanding performer, paced Vic High with 13 points. Harris dropped several baskets at times when the Oaks were threatening to close the gap.

John Fraser, turning in a strong two-way game for Oak Bay, was the game's top scorer with 14 points.

A third-quarter scoring spree that produced 17 straight points carried the Victoria College "B" squad to a 41-27 decision over Royal Roads in the tussle for third place.

Set-shot artist Jay May paced the College with 14 points.

Lineups:

DARRELL'S 26 NOT ENOUGH

UBC Jayvees trimmed Darrell Lormier's point production Saturday night and evened the score in a week-end basketball series with Victoria College Vikings at Gordon Head.

Downed 53-41 Friday night as Lormier connected for 35 points, Jayvees still had trouble with the college ace Saturday but managed to pull out a 54-48 victory.

Lanky Darrell hit the hoop for 26 points, 19 in the second half. Bill Birardino paced the Jayvees with 14.

Campbell Sparks Heaneys

Heaneys have stepped into a commanding position in the race for Division I honors in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association.

Getting a three-goal effort from Dunc Campbell and a single tally from Brian Usher, Heaneys clipped Victoria Optimists 4-0 Sunday to pull into a first-place tie with Optimists.

In addition to outplaying the co-leaders in Sunday's important battle, Heaneys also own the advantage of a game in hand over their rivals.

In Sunday's other Division I tussle, Marty Taylor tallied twice to give Britannia Legion a 2-2 tie with Colwood Pharmacy. John Allen and Ron Stebbings counted for Colwood.

Sparked by a four-goal outburst by Peter Harold and a three-goal effort by Danny Evans, Esquimalt Lions racked up a 10-0 Division III triumph over Salt Spring Island.

Lost Weight — Feel Young Again

"I never realized how much better I would feel by losing weight. My weight had accumulated slowly for the last three years. I had continued to gain until I suddenly realized I was becoming quite large. I heard of the Naran Plan and, have had beneficial results. I have lost 25 pounds easily and without having to starve." —J. Thompson, Hamilton.

A typewriter weighs about 25 pounds. Lift one and imagine what a strain it would put on your system if you were to carry it around all day. Excess weight is just such a strain. Don't punish yourself any longer — there is no reason for continuing to be overweight unless you are too lazy to walk to the drug store and ask for the Naran Plan. The Naran Plan is sold on a money back guarantee.

REFUSE TO RIDE

Bowie Mud Stops Jockeys

By Canadian Press

Bowie Race Course's ill-fated winter meeting suffered another setback Saturday when jockeys refused to ride on a "bottomless" track after two races had been run. A three-horse spill occurred in the first race.

Nine days of racing had been cancelled prior to Saturday because of snow, and the Maryland track had just reopened after being idle since Feb. 2.

The meeting has also been marred by the wreck of a special race train in which six persons died and a fire that destroyed a building housing out-

Sponsor Sought For Appearance Of Seattle Group

Plans to make the visit of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, Feb. 26 and 27, a gala event are under discussion by Victoria Symphony Society executives.

It will be the first visit by the Seattle Symphony in more than two decades.

President Jack Barraclough has said Greater Victoria, Sidney and Duncan municipal leaders and all Victoria Symphony patrons will be guests at the concert.

Most immediate project, however, is to seek a sponsor.

It is hoped that some official body such as the Greater Victoria municipalities or tourist publicity group might become sponsor. Mr. Barraclough stressed the "importance of our relations with Seattle which is having its Century 21 World Fair next year."

But if any public-spirited business steps forward, the society would be delighted.

There are also plans being made for a public reception at the theatre after each concert.

50% BOOST IN LAND ASSESSMENT

Bennett's New Escalator Only Goes One Way—Up

By JOHN MIKA

What's all the civic screaming about in the new assessment formula decreed by Premier Bennett?

Briefly, many municipal leaders feel the premier is heaping insult onto injury in one stroke.

And homeowners may feel the same way next year when their land assessments—in cities like Victoria—jump 50 per cent and more.

TAX ESCALATOR

By eliminating assessments from base years and tying them to actual market values, the premier also has put rate-payors on a tax escalator that is going up at a swift pace.

This is what Saanich Reeve George Chatterton, an executive member of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, has labelled a "sneak" play to shift more school costs onto property owners.

The premier announced Friday that new legislation would eliminate the present assessment formula under which land was assessed at 60 per cent of its 1955 value and buildings were assessed at 75 per cent of their selling price in 1953.

Starting with the 1962 rolls, all land will be assessed at 50 per cent of actual market value at the time of assessment and buildings will be assessed at the equivalent of 37½ per cent of current market value.

BIG BOOST

Assessors from the lower mainland to Greater Victoria have warned that this will mean a drastic increase in land assessments in many cases next year—due to the galloping market value of lots in organized communities—although relatively little impact will be felt on building assessments.

How does this affect school costs? Municipalities, by law, have to pay the first 12 mills of taxes towards school costs regardless of what the provincial grants may be.

The greater the assessment, the more money each mill will raise and the less money the province will have to add to make up the costs of operating schools.

For instance, a typical home in a typical area—such as Fairfield district—today may be assessed at $3,500 for the building and $850 for the land. Result is that the first 12 mills of tax raises $52.20 from this property towards school costs.

But lot values in Fairfield today run about $2,500. So next year's land assessment will be $1,250 or better.

ANOTHER $4.80

And that means another $4.80 will be squeezed out of that ratepayer next year to help pay for the schools.

Mr. Bennett's 1962 budget will benefit to the same extent because he will have to pay $4.80 less towards those school costs—unless the legislature reduces the compulsory 12-mill requirement placed on municipalities. So far the government hasn't announced any intention of that.

THE BARK WAS WORSE THAN THE BITE

Victims of lively windstorm Sunday were two evergreens on Cardiff Road property of Jack Morrison, which fell with resounding crash across new home. Damage to house was light, with only cracked plaster and broken gutter noted today. (Times Photo).

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keale

"Everything was great about the Automobile Show," people were saying today, "except the autos."

Visitors complained that there was no spectacular item in the display, like a Bentley, Rolls or Cadillac.

But auto dealer Newell Morrison explained that one of the big problems in the inaugural show was a lack of space. People who argued that a row of benches should have been provided in front of the stage perhaps didn't realize that it's against the fire marshal's orders. Too much gas around.

Newell believes that the show will get better each year. The man who promotes it is trying to arrange a circuit between Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary and Winnipeg, which will enable him to guarantee a month's work to the top entertainment stars.

As it is, he paid $4,000 to the Four Lads, $1,250 to Eddie Peabody (that old scene-stealer) and $2,750 for the balance of the show. After a slow start, the Auto Show made its expenses by Friday night and rode the gravy train for a strong finish Saturday.

The certified political seer of the morning bugle thinks that the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election is all over. He began an item Sunday morning with the words: "When Saanich Reeve George Chatterton gets to Ottawa as Esquimalt-Saanich's new MP."

Undoubtedly, Chatterton is a strong candidate. He's young, personable, intelligent, and a worker. But he has yet to win the Tory nomination. And a veteran Saanich Liberal told this corner:

"We hope Chatterton wins it, because we can beat him (with Dave Groos) hands down. There's a lot of unhappiness in Saanich about taxes, schools, subdivisions, roads and sewers—not to mention a general disenchantment with 'Dief the Grief'."

Win or lose, Chatterton's decision to quit the VLA after 15 years of service seems a curious one. Political pundits question his timing. The latest Gallup poll shows the Liberals leading the Tories in nation-wide esteem by 44 per cent to 38.

At best, they argue, Chatterton can hope for one term in Ottawa. Where does he go from there?

In an astonishing column in The Sun late last week, columnist Jack Scott came out flatly for public ownership of the new newspaper mill at Crofton. Of the projected New Party, he cried: "Long may it reign."

This party, he it noted, has not yet formulated a platform or policy; has no leader; and still awaits its first convention. Yet Scott has given it his unqualified endorsement.

Jack has made a life work of attacking prejudice. But would he confess to political prejudice, in thus espousing "a riddle wrapped in an enigma?"

Not on your tynette, he would. The wriggles and contortions of the doctrinaire Socialist mind will hollow this opinion as perfectly straight, logical and unbiased thinking.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Last year was worse than most, city fire department revealed today in its annual report.

Fire alarms were up 57 from 1959 to an even 800 in 1960, fire losses rose from $412,426 to a total of $570,881, malicious false alarms jumped from 32 to 98 and inhalator calls increased from 47 to 65.

Regular meeting of the Ontario Social Group of Victoria will take place at 1400 Broad Street on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

A two-year agreement granting a 13-cent wage increase to about 100 workers during the next two years has been reached by Canadian Industries Ltd., James Island, and Local 16-696, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union.

A 5-cent per hour increase was scheduled to go into effect March 1, but the company "jumped the gun" by adding it to wages as of today.

Four-cent increases will be granted Nov. 1, 1961, and July 1, 1962.

Pleading guilty to uttering forged cheques, Maureen Missen, 21, of Vancouver, was remanded by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today until February 21 for sentence.

She admitted receiving a total of $679 in cash by passing forged cheques at four downtown supermarkets and two banks.

Monthly meeting of the Victoria Natural History Society will be held on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Douglas Building Cafeteria. R. Bruce Scott, formerly of the cable station at Bamfield, will be the guest speaker. Films on the Fossil World and the Rival World will be shown.

Winners of the annual men's pairs city championship, conducted by Victoria unit, American Contract Bridge League were:

First, Samuel Duprau and Bert Warrender, Otto Leestment and W. Simpson-Balkie (tie); third, Douglas Hawkes and Jim Bowden.

Engineering students from the University of B.C. opened their engineering week on the mainland campus today when they delivered a torch lit in Victoria and carried by a series of runners to Dr. David Myers, dean of applied science at UBC.

Robert Noble, students' president, led a delegation which presented the torch for lighting by Highways Minister Gagliardi on the steps of the Legislative Buildings at 8 a.m.

The students took the torch by car to the 9 a.m. ferry from Swartz Bay, then runners took over to carry it from Tsawwassen to UBC.

National Social Credit Association president Robert N. Thompson today meets Premier Bennett and Sacred MLAs here in caucus.

Mr. Thompson elected Sacred president last summer, spent the weekend here. He is on a speech-making tour of southern B.C.

After attending the caucus of MLAs, Mr. Thompson was to see them in action at this afternoon's sitting of the legislature.

One of four students at University of British Columbia to receive Athlone Fellowships this year is Roger N. Stone, son of Mrs. K. D. Stone, 1573 Wilmot Place, Oak Bay.

The award entitles Roger to two years advanced work or research in industry or at universities in the United Kingdom and includes travelling and living expenses, academic fees and book allowances.

Roger graduated with a bachelor of applied science degree recently.

Silver Threads Service director Glen Hamilton today asked city council to sponsor a city-wide survey to determine the housing needs of elderly persons in Victoria.

He said senior citizen housing societies are handicapped in planning because they are not certain how much and what kind of housing is most urgently needed.

The League of Roses will meet in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, Thursday evening at 8.

The huge 72-inch telescope at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain is to be waterproofed, repaired and repainted. Yarrows Ltd. plans to start work on the project within a month.

Repairs and painting are also slated for the 66 ft. diameter dome and the 48-inch telescope dome.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett will be guest speaker at a rally in Colwood W.I. hall, Sooke Road, at 6.15 p.m. Wednesday. The rally is being organized by Esquimalt-Saanich federal riding branch of the Social Credit League.

Ammunition Unloaded From Skeena

Probe Under Way On Cause of Fire

The destroyer-escort HMCS Skeena moved to Pedder Bay for de-ammunitioning this morning following a fire which damaged one of the ship's radio rooms.

The fire was discovered at 7:05 a.m. Saturday, when the Skeena was in the drydock at HMC Dockyard, and took two and one half hours to control.

Heavy smoke in the confined quarters of the small radio room and a narrow passageway outside made it extremely difficult for the ship's damage control party and Dockyard firefighters to get to the seat of the fire.

CUT THROUGH DECK

It was finally controlled by cutting through the deck overhead to bring fire hoses to play.

A report that "sea cocks" were opened during the fire was emphatically denied by the navy, as were reports that ammunition had been destroyed and lives endangered.

The Skeena was in drydock for repairs to propeller damage incurred while she was on anti-submarine exercises off the west coast of Vancouver Island last week. The dock had not yet been pumped out.

INQUIRY

As she moved out of Esquimalt Harbor under her own power this morning for Pedder Bay, an investigation was started in the ship to determine the cause and extent of damage.

Navy officials said it was impossible even to guess at the extent of the damage to the radio equipment, all of which is expensive.

WATER RAISED

In an official statement the navy said: "The ship was afloat in the drydock of HMC Dockyard at the time, and the water level was raised to that of the harbor as a precautionary measure."

"A damage control party comprised of members of the ship's company, and fire-fighting personnel of HMC Dockyard, had the fire under control within two-and-one-half hours. No one was injured."

PRECAUTION

"Fifty rounds of ammunition, all stored in watertight cases close to the fire area, were removed to the dockside as a precautionary measure."

"No ammunition was destroyed, and in bringing the fire under control, no sea cocks of the ship had to be opened."

"The length of time required to complete repairs in the radio room area will depend to a large extent on the detailed survey of the damage."

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Ste. Therese returns Feb. 17; Sussexvale, Beacon Hill and New Glasgow return April 21. St. Laurent, Margaree, Ottawa, Saguenay, Jonquiere left today, return a.m. Wednesday.

YM-YW ASK NEW HOME AS GIFT

City council today was asked to declare construction of a joint YMCA-YWCA building as an official project for celebrating the city's centennial next year.

The request was made by the YM-YWCA development committee which plans to erect a joint building on a new site.

"The YMCA has served the Greater Victoria community since 1859 and the YWCA since 1893 and we respectfully suggest that a new building for the YM-YWCA would make a fine and useful official project for centennial year," the letter said.

HUGE TRACTOR TRUCK pulling flatbed trailer, nearly pulverized this 1957 model station wagon in a crash at Government and Bay in mid-morning today—but neither driver bore a scratch. Police said Mogens Neilsen, 329 Kingston, drove south on Government and was in collision with the truck which driver Mohan Singh Dillon, 94 Sims, was attempting to turn left to go west on Bay. There was $1,200 damage to the wagon, minor damage to the truck. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

FOR NEW B.C. FERRY

City-Seattle Run Called 'Possible'

One of the B.C. government's two new ferries may be used between Seattle and Victoria, it was learned today.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said it is a "possibility" that the Seattle run might take up the slack of the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen service during winter months.

The two new ferries, announced by Premier Bennett in his budget speech Friday, will go into service some time in 1962.

"There has been talk that two would not be needed to handle traffic at that time," said Mr. Gagliardi.

"In answer to those doubts, I can say it is a possibility that one of the ferries might be put on the Seattle run."

This decision, he said, would have to be made by the Toll Authority which operates the service. Premier Bennett is chairman.

Mr. Gagliardi also said the provincial government will build a four-lane highway from Victoria to Swartz Bay "when it becomes necessary."

"The engineering studies have been made," he said. "I can't say now whether it would be a completely new route or widening of the existing route."

It is unlikely any work will start this year, he said.

Three Held After Sea Escapades

Sidney RCMP today held three young men in custody following a Sunday escapade in the stormy waters adjacent to Salt Spring Island which involved four boats, one rescue, and two searches.

It started at Canoe Cove when a 15-foot runabout was stolen and believed wrecked on Moresby Island.

Some time after 4 p.m., the 30-foot cruiser Maroka was reported missing from Moresby Island. At 10 p.m. the government ferry Tsawwassen, bound for the mainland, noted a distress signal.

A boat was lowered, and three men were taken from the disabled Maroka, at this time close to Kanaka Bluffs on Princess Margaret Island. When the ferry landed at Tsawwassen the three men were taken into custody by Richmond RCMP and turned over to Sidney RCMP today.

Ganges RCMP were informed of the rescue, and set off in the rough sea and strong wind aboard the Ganges-based police boat Sidney. They found the missing cruiser at 2 a.m. near Provost Island, east of Ganges Harbor, undamaged except for a bow line which had become wrapped around the propeller, thus stalling the engine and prompting the appeal for help to the ferry.

The vessel is owned by Moresby Island Properties Ltd., which recently sold the island to German interests.

Search is still underway for the smaller craft.

Sailor Survives As Car Crashes

AB James F. Dawdell of HMCS Naden, hurt Saturday night when his car crashed through a guard rail near Duncan and rolled over, was reported in good condition today at Naden Hospital.

The accident occurred at the Trans-Canada Highway E and N Railway overpass four miles north of Duncan. Dawdell, alone at the time, was unconscious when removed from the car.

He was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan, then was transferred to Victoria Sunday.

Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

TRAFFIC FINES

In-city police court today: Bertram F. Menzies, 3901 Stamboul, $40, careless driving. Karl W. Hamm, 395 Obed, $35, careless driving.

Donald E. Ryan, 3937 Carey Road, $20, licence expired. George Guilford, 722 Market, $10, no horn; $10, licence plates not securely fastened; $10, rear licence plate not illuminated.

Victor Hans George Kangro, 366 Crestview, $10, illegal left turn.

Opposition Withdrawn By Sign Firms

Victoria's sign companies have withdrawn their opposition to a city request for private legislation to confirm provisions in the new sign bylaw.

A statement by industry spokesmen W. T. Fraser and W. A. Bayliss today said the opposition was based on an "erroneous assumption" that the city was seeking power to remove all signs without notice or compensation.

Assurances from city officials that this was not the purpose of the city's petition to the private bills committee of the legislature have been received by sign company representatives so "it is not the intention of the undersigned to contest the petition."

HONOR AGREEMENT

The statement added that "although the letter of notice to the city council left the unfortunate impression that the sign companies wished to re-open the sign bylaw issue, this was not the intention of the undersigned."

It said the agreements between the sign companies and the city "were made in good faith and it is our intention to honor these agreements."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Flattering Whimsies Make Valentine Giving Easy

By PENNY SAVER

Smart hubbies will bear in mind that few women can resist the lure of a new hat when they go shopping for that all-important Valentine gift. If uncertain as to her particular style in chapeaux, he can always play safe by surprising her with one of the intriguing whimsies that spell glamor with a capital G whenever a special "date" is marked on her social calendar.

One's I've seen this week are flirtatiously feminine, being topped with three adorable flowers.

No matter what her favorite color may be, he'll be sure to find it in this selection. Some of the loveliest have flowers in shades of bronze, green, purple, pink or white and green.

Fine net whimsies come in individual round containers of clear plastic and sell at $2.98.

Another solution to Valentine gift problem might well be a pair of shaggy slip-on loafers that come packaged in a large heart-shaped plastic case.

Over-all print, simulating red lace, highlights the cases while edgings of frilly red lace complete Valentine motif.

Loafers come in small, medium and large sizes and are in practically every color imaginable. Included in selection are ones in purple, green, pink, white, mauve, chartreuse, red, turquoise, yellow, powder blue and aqua. These are a real "buy" at $2.98.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many women have a difficult time getting the correct fit in brassieres. Even those who make a special effort to get expert advice sometimes fail to find it in the store to which they go. I think the cup size is especially puzzling to most women.

First measure your chest directly under your armpits. This measurement, plus two inches, gives you the bra size. In other words, if your chest measures 32 inches your bra size will be 34.

Now measure around the fullest part of the bust. If this measurement is the same as the bra size, you should have an A cup. If it is one inch more a B cup is indicated. Two inches more calls for a C cup and three inches more for a D cup. In other words, if your bra size is 34 and your bust measures 34 around the fullest part, you need an A cup. If your bust measures 35 inches, you will need a B cup, and so forth.

As an additional guide measure under the bust, bearing in mind that the average measurement taken under the bust is about five inches less than the fullest part of the bust.

Be certain that the tape is even and snug but not too tight.

No rules could be infallible because of individual characteristics in build. The best bet yet is to have an expert fit you, but if one is not available these directions will help you come close, at least, to the right size.

It's finally here! The booklet I have been planning to write for a long time! It is called "Your Bust" and gives you directions for preserving and improving bust contour at all ages. It also gives you exercises for increasing your bust measurement. If you would like to have it send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Actions Speak Louder!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I met this girl last June and we fell in love, boom! Just like that. I am 22 and she is 17. Her mother likes me but her father hates me so bad I have to see this girl on the sneak. You see, I just spent 15 months in prison and her father can't forget it. I have never seen her father and he refuses to even meet me. He told his daughter if he ever caught her with me he would break her neck. Abby, I am really a swell guy. I am going straight. I want to marry this girl, but how can I, when her father won't even let her go out with me? Please help me. Thanks a million.

GOING STRAIGHT.

DEAR GOING: Put yourself

in her father's boots. How would you like to have YOUR 17-year-old daughter "in love" with a fellow just out of prison? He has nothing against you personally, but he doesn't like your record. Even now you are sneaking behind his back. I advise you to stay away from the girl until you have "gone straight" for a year and are able to show by your actions—not only words—that you are a "swell guy."

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that it was all right for husbands to have a night out with the boys as long as the boys were boys. What about the wives? Don't you think while the boys are out we girls should hire sitters and also have a night out with the girls, as long as the girls are girls?

"THE GIRLS"
DEAR "GIRLS": Better pick another night. You might run into the "boys."

DEAR ABBY: Five of us have been in a car pool for about two years. Four of us are in our late 20's and one lady is about 50. From the minute this older lady gets into the car, no matter who is talking, she interrupts and monopolizes the conversation. She does this all the time. No one has been able to finish a sentence in two years. Our question: Is there a polite way to tell this older woman to KEEP QUIET so someone else can get a word in edgewise?

FRUSTRATED FOUR.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You are all adults, so rudeness should neither be tolerated nor excused because of "age." One of you should tell the offending party (nicely) the consensus of her fellow passengers. If she doesn't get it—or doesn't like it—let her get another car pool.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK AND DISILLUSIONED": Talk to your clergyman about an annulment. When a woman marries, she is entitled to a man for a husband.

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this newspaper.

Who pays for what? For Abby's pamphlet, "How To Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50c to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

A SPRITELY TWO-YEAR OLD

The A-B Company was just a 2-year old when it first approached the Industrial Development Bank for a loan to expand its hosiery business. It was competing against a field which included well-established operators with impressive records but the owner was convinced that the company could successfully market a new non-branded product line despite the competition of the old-timers. The small company had done well so far and the loan was sought to boost production through the purchase of additional modern machinery.

In spite of a relatively short experience in the hosiery field, the owner had proved himself to be a capable and energetic operator and, after studying his expansion plans, I.D.B. agreed to finance the new equipment. The increased rate of production was still not enough to keep up with the company's booming sales and more machinery, also financed by an I.D.B. loan, was added within a short time.

Progress continued and the company sought a third loan for the construction of a building to house new processing facilities and other equipment needed to produce finer hosiery at competitive prices. Substantially bigger than its predecessors, this new expansion was also digested successfully and the company was on the way to even bigger things.

The A-B Company is now generally recognized to have a leading position in the hosiery industry. The development and growth of the company, aided by term financial assistance extended by Industrial Development Bank, has benefited Canadian industry and the consuming public, as well as providing employment for many Canadians.

Competent, alert management; modern, efficient equipment to produce quality goods at competitive prices; backed by sound and timely financing, have been the keys to the A-B Company's success.

The Industrial Development Bank was established in 1944 as a Subsidiary of the Bank of Canada to provide financial assistance to industrial enterprises unable to obtain their term financing needs through normal channels.

If you have a modernization problem that requires term financing we suggest you write or visit the nearest I.D.B. office for information and an explanatory booklet, or consult your auditor, lawyer or banker.

TOTS STAY WITH NEGRO —WHITES UP IN ARMS

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A German school teacher and his family are reported facing expulsion from South Africa because he let his three children spend a vacation at the clay hut of their Negro nurse.

A storm raged in newspapers about the case Sunday. The teacher is Victor Niedermayer. Published accounts said officials have notified him he must leave when his visa expires June 2 on the ground the incident was an affront to South Africa's racial segregation policy.

Niedermayer was quoted as saying earlier that he saw nothing wrong in letting the children — aged four to nine — spend a holiday with their nurse, Maria. That was last December.

NEW CONGO CRISIS

Lumumba Killers Get $8,000

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Patrice Lumumba is dead, the Katanga government announced today and the African villagers who killed him have received a reward of $8,000.

'NO CONFIDENCE'

Russia Scorns UN Probe

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valeriy Zorin charged today that "Patrice Lumumba was the victim of a colonialist murder and he scorned a call by UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld for a United Nations investigation."

Zorin spoke at an emergency meeting of the 11-member UN Security Council which convened in an atmosphere of crisis and shock following reports from The Congo that Lumumba, deposed premier, was killed by tribesmen after escaping from prison.

After hearing the Soviet charge the Security Council adjourned until Wednesday to let governments reappraise the situation in The Congo.

Hammarskjöld opened the meeting with a call for an impartial investigation—which UN officers in The Congo have already attempted to begin—but Zorin reacted angrily with the statement "We have not the slightest confidence in the secretary-general or his Congo command after all that has been committed in The Congo."

KENNEDY SHOCKED

The U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson, speaking before Zorin, noted that President Kennedy had expressed shock over Lumumba's death. Stevenson said the action shows "how far we still have to go."

'Halt Troops' UN Warning To Tshombe

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The United Nations has urged Katanga premier Moïse Tshombe to call off his military drive into north Katanga and warned that responsibility for any brush with UN troops "will be entirely his," a UN spokesman said today.

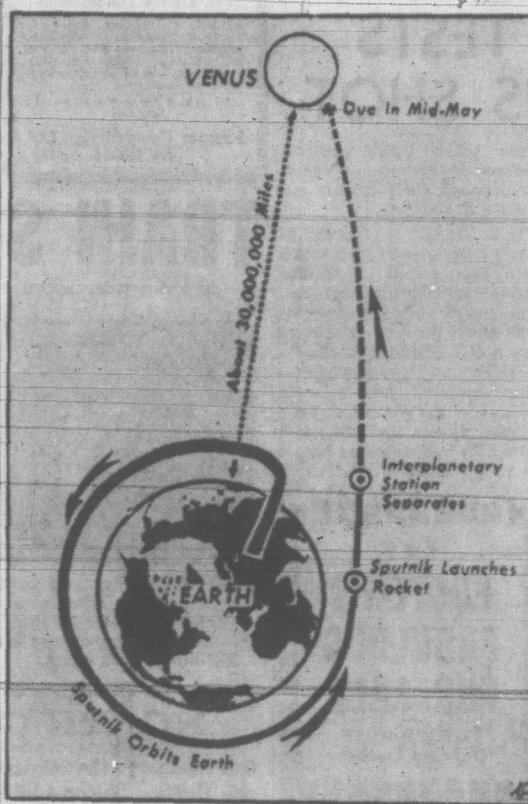

The warning was delivered in a note from Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the UN Congo mission, transmitted to UN authorities in Katanga Sunday.

The spokesman said about 2,000 of Tshombe's troops, led by European officers, now appear engaged in the thrust north, burning villages in the way.

Spaceship From Red Sputnik Speeding Towards Venus

HOW IT WAS DONE — Chart above shows sequence of launchings of newest and most spectacular of Russian space shots. First a multistage rocket carried new sputnik into orbit; then a rocket was fired from the sputnik and the rocket then was separated from the space station as it headed toward Venus. Schematic diagram below illustrates inter-planetary 'timetable' of the spaceship. (AP Wirephoto).

'IT'S FANTASTIC' — WEST EXPERTS

LONDON (UPI) — Western scientists today termed the Soviet Union's piggy-back rocket shot at Venus a remarkable achievement "that may help plumb the mysteries of earth's cloud-covered sister planet."

"This venture demands 400 times as much precision as their previous shot at the moon," said Prof. Jan H. Oort, director of the Leyden Observatory in Holland.

"I am led to believe that the Russians must have developed a highly reliable system of guiding a rocket while it is travelling through space."

French space expert Prof. Alexandre Ananov said Soviet scientists seemed to be trying to leapfrog space achievements by "firing big space ships with room for two or three men far out into the solar system."

He said it appeared to him that the Russians might leave to the United States the task of putting the first man in space close to earth.

Finnish astronomy Prof. Gustaf Jaernfelt said the feat would be "most remarkable" if the rocket ship were able to take pictures to show what kind of a surface Venus has.

"We don't know yet whether it will succeed," he said.

Prof. A. C. Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Radio Telescope, described the shot as "fantastic."

SKIN-DIVER

'Victim Of Own Enthusiasm'

By AB KENT

A 22-year-old father of two died in a skin-diving mishap in Finlayson Arm Sunday afternoon — a "victim of his own enthusiasm."

David Dorman, 2872 Inez, was pronounced dead at Hall's Boat-house after fellow divers and Langford firemen tried for more than an hour to revive him.

He was one of a party of nine divers—seven with underwater breathing apparatus and two, including Dorman, with snorkel and face mask.

The group, members of Victoria Sea Searchers' Club, were engaged in spear-fishing in Misery Bay, about a mile seaward from Hall's Boat-house at the approaches to the Maithat.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Sea Searchers and president of Vancouver Island Skin Diving Council.

Dorman was taken from the water a few minutes after he was noticed floating face down near a rocky point on which other members of the party were sitting after their diving session at about 1.45 p.m.

AN EXPERT

Club president Phil Poole, 30, of 932 Dunsmuir, who knew Dorman well, agreed with other divers that he was an expert although he had been diving only about two years.

"He was an athlete," Poole said. "We have observed him on many occasions and his capabilities were good. He was fearless."

"We're not medical men, but we are aware of the hazards. I knew him very well. If anything, he was a victim of his own enthusiasm," Poole said.

Pool and fellow divers Bill Fife, 21, of 962 Dingley Dell, and Bob Neill, 22, of Colwood, said Dorman practiced "hyper-ventilation."

This is a skin-diving term referring to slow, deep breathing on the surface while the diver is lying face down with his snorkel tube providing air supply.

THREE MINUTES

Dorman was an expert at it and was able to remain under water three minutes after clearing his lungs of carbon dioxide in this way.

Poole said from the lack of water in Dorman's lungs it appeared his throat muscles went into spasm and he suffocated from lack of oxygen — or carbon dioxide poisoning — rather than drowned.

Fife said, "We think he blacked out."

The eight other divers, including Fife, were on the rocks when someone remarked that Dorman seemed to be lying still for longer than usual.

Neill went out to him in an inboard boat, then called for help when he saw Dorman's snorkel mouthpiece free from its proper place.

He hauled the diver into the boat and began applying artificial respiration, which he continued as the boat was beached.

He kept it up as one diver went to call police and ambulance and another fetched a faster boat.

After 15 minutes, Dorman was transferred to an out-

SPORTING MOTIVE QUERIED

'Search My Home'—Peer

STAMFORD, England (Reuters) — A British peer Sunday invited an American firm which is investigating his connections with Communist China to search his stately home.

Lord David Burghley, 56-year-old Marquess of Exeter, said a New York firm called Industrial Reports and headed by retired Brig. Gen. John Grombach, had called in a London detective agency to aid its investigation.

Burghley said the investigation was being carried out because at president of the International Amateur Athletic Association he helped gain the affiliation of the Peking Athletic Association with the IAAF.

In New York, Gen. Grombach, a member of the United States Olympic Committee and secretary of the International Fencing Federation, said the investigation was to determine whether Burghley benefited from any trade connections with Communist China.

Burghley said his support of the Communist Chinese affiliation was purely for sporting reasons.

Burghley was educated at Eton and afterwards became an officer in the Brigade of Guards. He won an Olympic gold medal in 1928 in the 400-metre hurdles.

'Biggest Event' Of Space Age

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — A three-quarter ton Soviet rocket ship hurtled through space on a three month journey toward Venus today.

Soviet scientists said their new space vehicle will become an artificial planet circling the sun if it does not succeed in hitting Venus.

Either way, they said, the spectacular rocket may unravel some of the secrets of the earth's nearest sister planet — including whether there is life on it.

A shot at Mars is considered a strong future possibility. Further news of the space vehicle was expected when it has covered about 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 miles. Some scientists here believe Venus will be about 62,500,000 miles from earth when the vehicle approaches it.

The Russians said there was no life aboard the vehicle. The Soviet Union's 1,420-pound "interplanetary station" was due to rendezvous with Venus in the second half of May following its novel launching from an orbiting earth satellite Sunday.

Many scientists thought the new Soviet space vehicle may be carrying telephotographic equipment to send back pictures of cloud-veiled Venus. A Russian spaceship already has photographed the hidden side of the moon.

At the moment Venus is on one of its closest approaches to the earth. Western and Soviet scientists said the system indicated remarkably advanced guidance systems and powerful rockets. The method had been discussed for years but so far as was known this was the first time it had been tried.

It was noted that a report from the United States Sunday night said the U.S. does not expect to attempt a plane.

The launching also warmed up the space race. Sunday's Venus shot was rated the most sensational achievement in the field since Russia sent the first Sputnik into space in October, 1957.

Travelling at 25,000 Miles an Hour

Moscow radio said the interplanetary station was moving at 25,000 miles an hour. Late Sunday night the Venus-bound rocket was said to be "functioning normally" and moving along close to its pre-determined path under observation from a station somewhere in the Soviet Union.

The statement added: "Equipment on board the inter-planetary station is functioning normally."

"Radio transmissions from automatic inter-planetary stations are made on the frequency of 922.8 kilocycles on command from the earth."

Carries Pennant With Coat-of-Arms

The automatic interplanetary station is moving along an orbit close to that calculated.

"At noon Moscow time (1 a.m. MST) on Feb. 12, 1961, the station was 126,300 kilometers (about 78,930 miles) from the earth over the point on the earth's surface at 86 degrees 40 minutes eastern longitude and 6 degrees 4 minutes northern latitude."

"The successful launching of a space rocket to the planet Venus blazes the first path to planets of the solar system."

Tass concluded. "The main object of the probe is to check the methods of injecting a space body into an interplanetary trajectory, to check radio communications over super-long distances and the guiding of a space station, to check more exactly the size of the solar system and to

Fat Head Hurt Us — Hees

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada is like a boxer who has let himself get "fat and sloppy and out of condition" and must get back in shape in order to compete on the world market, Trade Minister Hees said Sunday night.

In the postwar period, before the West European economies recovered, it was easy for Canada to sell goods and the country got to be like "a boxer who gets to be champ and gets a swelled head," Mr. Hees said.

The boxer lets himself get out of condition and then "a lean and hungry fighter comes along and knocks his head off and he has to get back into shape, and that's what Canada has to do."

He was addressing students from about 20 Ontario and Quebec colleges at the closing dinner of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation's two-day Macdonald-Cartier conference.

Mr. Hees said the government is doing everything possible to stimulate Canadian trade abroad, but it is up to management and labor to make goods which can compete.

Canadian goods lagged particularly in design, and good design was essential if Canadian products were to compete with lower-priced foreign goods.

SALES PROVIDE CURE

Only increased sales can cure unemployment, Mr. Hees said, and it is up to the Canadian people themselves to provide the cure. The government could not do it alone.

Saturday, External Affairs Minister Green told them Canada could not take up a neutralist stance without losing her self-respect.

He said some Canadian critics suggested Canada would have more influence in world councils if she were neutral, "but we wouldn't have any more friends if we were and some of our old friends would wonder what had happened to us."

His statements were loudly applauded by the delegates, who later passed a resolution urging Canada to stay out of the neutrals' camp "while striving vigorously for world disarmament."

COLD TOWARDS CHINA

But in passing, Mr. Green also threw some cold water on another resolution approved by the convention—that Canada immediately take steps to recognize Red China and get her seated in the United Nations.

Referring to the resolution, Mr. Green said he understood the delegates had "settled" one of Canada's external affairs problems "but I'm not sure you've settled it in the right way."

The resolution passed by the convention called for recognition to be conditional on continued recognition of the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa.

Campbell Sparks Heaneys

Heaneys have stepped into a commanding position in the race for Division I honors in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association.

Getting a three-goal effort from Dunc Campbell and a single tally from Brian Usher, Heaneys clipped Victoria Optimists 4-0 Sunday to pull into a first-place tie with Optimists.

In addition to outplaying the co-leaders in Sunday's important battle, Heaneys also own the advantage of a game in hand over their rivals.

In Sunday's other Division I tussle, Marty Taylor tallied twice to give Britannia Legion a 2-2 tie with Colwood Pharmacy. John Allen and Ron Stebbings counted for Colwood.

Sparked by a four-goal outburst by Peter Harold and a three-goal effort by Danny Evans, Esquimalt Lions racked up a 10-0 Division III triumph over Salt Spring Island.

 NANAIMO (CP)—Nanaimo Fish and Game League has voted 30-15 in favor of sports fishing licences for salt water anglers.

G. E. Moore of the federal fisheries department said the licence fee would not pay for the increase in staff necessary.

"But it would give the department better statistics which are necessary for the proper conservation."

REFUSE TO RIDE

Bowie Mud Stops Jockeys

 Bowie Race Course's ill-fated winter meeting suffered another setback Saturday when jockeys refused to ride on a "bottomless" track after two races had been run. A three-hour spill occurred in the first race.

Nine days of racing had been cancelled prior to Saturday because of snow, and the Maryland track had just reopened after being idle since Feb. 2.

The meeting has also been marred by the wreck of a special race train in which six persons died and a fire that de-

50% BOOST IN LAND ASSESSMENT

Bennett's New Escalator Only Goes One Way—Up

By JOHN MIKA

What's all the civic screaming about in the new assessment formula decreed by Premier Bennett?

Briefly, many municipal leaders feel the premier is heaping insult onto injury in one stroke.

And homeowners may feel the same way next year when their land assessments—in cities like Victoria—jump 50 per cent and more.

TAX ESCALATOR

By eliminating assessments from base years and tying them to actual market values, the premier also has put ratepayers on a tax escalator that is going up at a swift pace. This is what Saanich Reeve George Chatterton, an executive member of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, has labelled a "sneak" play to shift more school costs onto property owners.

The premier announced Friday that new legislation would eliminate the present assessment formula under which land was assessed at 60 per cent of its 1953 value and buildings were assessed at 75 per cent of their selling price in 1953.

Starting with the 1962 rolls, all land will be assessed at 50 per cent of actual market value at the time of assessment and buildings will be assessed at the equivalent of 37½ per cent of current market value.

BIG BOOST

Assessors from the lower mainland to Greater Victoria have warned that this will mean a drastic increase in land assessments in many cases next year—due to the galloping market value of lots in organized communities—although relatively little impact will be felt on building assessments.

How does this affect school costs?

Municipalities, by law, have to pay the first 12 mills of taxes towards school costs regardless of what the provincial grants may be.

The greater the assessment, the more money each mill will raise and the less money the province will have to add to make up the costs of operating schools.

For instance, a typical home in a typical area—such as Fairfield district—today may be assessed at $3,500 for the building and $850 for the land. Result is that the first 12 mills of tax raises $52.20 from this property towards school costs.

But lot values in Fairfield today run about $2,500. So next year's land assessment will be $1,250 or better.

ANOTHER $4.80

And that means another $4.80 will be squeezed out of that ratepayer next year to help pay for the schools.

Mr. Bennett's 1962 budget will benefit to the same extent because he will have to pay $4.80 less towards those school costs—unless the legislature reduces the compulsory 12-mill requirement placed on municipalities. So far the government hasn't announced any intention of that.

THE BARK WAS WORSE THAN THE BITE

Victims of lively windstorm Sunday were two evergreens on Cardiff Road property of Jack Morrison, which fell with resounding crash across new home. Damage to house was light, with only cracked plaster and broken gutter noted today. (Times Photo).

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keale

"Everything was great about the Automobile Show," people were saying today, "except the autos."

Visitors complained that there was no spectacular item in the display, like a Bentley, Rolls or Cadillac.

But auto dealer Newell Morrison explained that one of the big problems in the inaugural show was a lack of space. People who argued that a row of benches should have been provided in front of the stage perhaps didn't realize that it's against the fire marshal's orders. Too much gas around.

Newell believes that the show will get better each year. The man who promotes it is trying to arrange a circuit between Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary and Winnipeg, which will enable him to guarantee a month's work to the top entertainment stars.

As it is, he paid $4,000 to the Four Lads, $1,250 to Eddie Peabody (that old scene-stealer) and $2,750 for the balance of the show. After a slow start, the Auto Show made its expenses by Friday night and rode the gravy-train for a strong finish Saturday.

The certified political seer of the morning bugle thinks that the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election is all over. He began an item Sunday morning with the words: "When Saanich Reeve George Chatterton gets to Ottawa as Esquimalt-Saanich's new MP."

Undoubtedly, Chatterton is a strong candidate. He's young, personable, intelligent, and a worker. But he has yet to win the Tory nomination. And a veteran Saanich Liberal told this corner:

"We hope Chatterton wins it, because we can beat him (with Dave Groos) hands down. There's a lot of unhappiness in Saanich about taxes, schools, subdivisions, roads and sewers—not to mention a general disenchantment with 'Dief the Grief'."

Win or lose, Chatterton's decision to quit the VLA after 15 years of service seems a curious one. Political pundits question his timing. The latest Gallup poll shows the Liberals leading the Tories in nation-wide esteem by 44 per cent to 38.

At best, they argue, Chatterton can hope for one term in Ottawa. Where does he go from there?

In an astonishing column in The Sun late last week, columnist Jack Scott came out flatly for public ownership of the new newspaper mill at Crofton. Of the projected New Party, he cried: "Long may it reign."

This party, he it noted, has not yet formulated a platform or policy; has no leader; and still awaits its first convention. Yet Scott has given it his unqualified endorsement.

Jack has made a life work of attacking prejudice. But would he confess to political prejudice, in thus espousing "a riddle wrapped in an enigma?"

Not on your tinfole, he would. The wriggles and contortions of the doctrinaire Socialist mind will hallow this opinion as perfectly straight, logical and unbiased thinking.

Ammunition Unloaded From Skeena

Probe Under Way On Cause of Fire

The destroyer-escort HMCS Skeena moved to Pedder Bay for de-ammunitioning this morning following a fire which damaged one of the ship's radio rooms.

The fire was discovered at 7:05 a.m. Saturday, when the Skeena was in the drydock at HMC Dockyard, and took two and one-half hours to control.

Heavy smoke in the confined quarters of the small radio room and a narrow passageway outside made it extremely difficult for the ship's damage control party and dockyard firefighters to get to the seat of the fire.

CUT THROUGH DECK

It was finally controlled by cutting through the deck overhead to bring fire hoses to play.

A report that "sea cocks" were opened during the fire was emphatically denied by the navy, as was reports that ammunition had been destroyed or lives endangered.

The Skeena was in drydock for repairs to propeller damage incurred while she was on anti-submarine exercises off the west coast of Vancouver Island last week. The dock had not yet been pumped out.

INQUIRY

As she moved out of Esquimalt Harbor under her own power this morning for Pedder Bay, an investigation was started in the ship to determine the cause and extent of damage.

Navy officials said it was impossible even to guess at the extent of the damage to the radio equipment, all of which is expensive.

WATER-RAISED

In an official statement the navy said:

"The ship was afloat in the drydock of HMC Dockyard at the time, and the water level was raised to that of the harbor as a precautionary measure."

"A damage control party comprised of members of the ship's company, and fire-fighting personnel of HMC Dockyard, had the fire under control within two-and-one-half hours. No one was injured."

PRECAUTION

"Fifty rounds of ammunition, all stored in watertight cases close to the fire area, were removed to the dockside as a precautionary measure."

"No ammunition was destroyed, and in bringing the fire under control, no sea cocks of the ship had to be opened."

"The length of time required to complete repairs in the radio room area will depend to a large extent on the detailed survey of the damage."

YM-YW ASK NEW HOME AS GIFT

City council today was asked to declare construction of a joint YMCA-YWCA building as an official project for celebrating the city's centennial next year.

The request was made by the YM-YWCA development committee which plans to erect a joint building on a new site.

"The YMCA has served the Greater Victoria community since 1859 and the YWCA since 1893 and we respectfully suggest that a new building for the YM-YWCA would make a fine and useful official project for centennial year," the letter said.

HUGE TRACTOR TRUCK pulling flatbed trailer, nearly pulverized this 1957 model station wagon in a crash at Government and Bay in mid-morning today—but neither driver bore a scratch. Police said Mogens Neilsen, 329 Kingston, drove south on Government and was in collision with the truck which driver Mohan Singh Dillon, 94 Sims, was attempting to turn left to go west on Bay. There was $1,200 damage to the wagon, minor damage to the truck. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

FOR NEW B.C. FERRY

City-Seattle Run Called 'Possible'

One of the B.C. government's two new ferries may be used between Seattle and Victoria, it was learned today.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said it is a "possibility" that the Seattle run might take up the slack of the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen service during winter months.

The two new ferries, announced by Premier Bennett in his budget speech Friday, will go into service some time in 1962.

"There has been talk that two would not be needed to handle traffic at that time," said Mr. Gagliardi.

"In answer to those doubts, I can say it is a possibility that one of the ferries might be put on the Seattle run."

This decision, he said, would have to be made by the Toll Authority which operates the service. Premier Bennett is chairman.

Mr. Gagliardi also said the provincial government will build a four-lane highway from Victoria to Swartz Bay "when it becomes necessary."

"The engineering studies have been made," he said. "I can't say now whether it would be a completely new route or widening of the existing route."

It is unlikely any work will start this year, he said.

Sailor Survives As Car Crashes

AB James F. Dawdell of HMCS Naden, hurt Saturday night when his car crashed through a guard rail near Duncan and rolled over, was reported in good condition today at Naden Hospital.

The accident occurred at the Trans-Canada Highway—E and N. Railway overpass four miles north of Duncan. Dawdell, alone at the time, was unconscious when removed from the car.

He was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan, then was transferred to Victoria Sunday.

Tragedy Ends Spear-Fishing

By AB KENT

A 22-year-old father of two died in a skin-diving mishap in Finlayson Arm Sunday afternoon—a "victim of his own enthusiasm."

David Dorman, 2872 Inez, was pronounced dead at Hall's Boat-house after fellow divers and Langford firemen tried for more than an hour to revive him.

He was one of a party of nine divers—seven with underwater breathing apparatus and two, including Dorman, with snorkel and face mask.

MISERY BAY

The group, members of Victoria Sea Searchers' Club, were engaged in spear-fishing in Misery Bay, about a mile seaward from Hall's Boat-house at the approaches to the Malahat.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Sea Searchers and president of Vancouver Island Skin Diving Council.

Dorman was taken from the water a few minutes after he was noticed floating face down near a rocky point on which other members of the party were sitting after their diving session at about 1.45 p.m.

AN EXPERT

Club president Phil Pools, 30, of 932 Dunsmuir, who knew Dorman well, agreed with other divers that he was an expert although he had been diving only about two years.

"He was an athlete," Pools said. "We have observed him on many occasions and his capabilities were good. He was fearless."

"We're not medical men, but we are aware of the hazards. I knew him very well. If anything, he was a victim of his own enthusiasm," Pools said.

Pools and fellow divers Bill Fife, 21, of 962 Dingley Dell, and Bob Neill, 22, of Colwood, said Dorman practiced "hyperventilation."

This is a skin-diving term referring to slow, deep breathing on the surface while the diver is lying face down with his snorkel tube, providing air supply.

Dorman was an expert at it

DAVID DORMAN
...he was fearless

and was able to remain under water three minutes after clearing his lungs of carbon dioxide in this way.

Pools said from the lack of water in Dorman's lungs it appeared his throat muscles went into spasm and he suffocated from lack of oxygen rather than from drowning.

Fife said, "We think he blacked out."

The eight other divers, including Fife, were on the rocks when someone remarked that Dorman seemed to be lying still for longer than usual.

Neill went out to him in an inboard boat, then called for help when he saw Dorman's snorkel mouthpiece free from its proper place.

He hauled the diver into the boat and began applying artificial respiration, which he continued as the boat was beached.

He kept it up as one diver went to call police and ambulance and another fetched a faster boat.

After 15 minutes, Dorman was transferred to an out-

TOTS STAY WITH NEGRO —WHITES UP IN ARMS

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A German school teacher and his family are reported facing expulsion from South Africa because he let his three children spend a vacation at the club hut of their Negro nurse.

A storm raged in newspapers about the case Sunday. The teacher is Victor Niedermayer. Published accounts said officials have notified him he must leave when his visa expires June 2 on the ground the incident was an affront to South Africa's racial segregation policy.

Niedermayer was quoted as saying earlier that he saw nothing wrong in letting the children—aged four to nine—spend a holiday with their nurse, Maria. That was last December.

SPACESHIP TO VENUS CALLED 'BIG FIRST'

Rocket Hurlled From Sputnik

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — A three-quarter ton Soviet rocket ship launched from an orbiting satellite hurtled through space on a three month journey toward Venus today.

Soviet scientists said their new space vehicle will become an artificial planet circling the sun if it does not succeed in hitting Venus.

Either way, they said, the spectacular rocket may unravel some of the secrets of the earth's nearest sister planet—including whether there is life on it.

Further news of the space vehicle was expected when it has covered about 2,000,000 of 3,000,000 miles. Some scientists here believe Venus will be about 62,500,000 miles from earth when the vehicle approaches it.

The Russians said there was no life aboard the vehicle.

The Soviet Union's 1,420-pound "interplanetary station" was due to rendezvous with Venus in the second half of May following its novel launching from an orbiting earth satellite Sunday.

'New Stage in Conquest of Space'

As Western scientists warmly praised the launching of the Venus probe as a major achievement in space technology, leading Soviet astronomer Boris Kukarkin said it marks a "new stage in man's conquest of interplanetary space."

It brought closer "the fulfillment of man's dream to visit and investigate the planets," he said.

The launching also warmed up the space race. Sunday's Venus shot was rated the most sensational achievement in the field since Russia sent the first Sputnik into space in October, 1957.

It was noted that a report from the United States Sunday night said the U.S. does not expect to attempt a planetary launching from an earth satellite for another 18 months to two years. The U.S. has tried vainly to send satellites into orbit around Venus.

Many scientists thought the new Soviet space vehicle may be carrying telephotographic equipment to send back pictures of cloud-veiled Venus. A Russian spaceship already has photographed the hidden side of the moon.

At the moment Venus is one of its closest approaches to the earth.

Western and Soviet scientists said the system indicated remarkably advanced guidance systems and powerful rockets.

The method had been discussed for years but so far as was known this was the first time it had been tried.

HOW IT WAS DONE — Chart above shows sequence of launchings of newest and most spectacular of Russian space shots. First a multistage rocket carried new sputnik into orbit; then a rocket was fired from the sputnik and the rocket then was separated from the space station as it headed toward Venus.

Russia Rejects UN Congo Probe

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerin Zorin charged today that Patrice Lumumba was the victim of a colonialist murder and he scorned a call by UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld for a United Nations investigation.

Zorin spoke at an emergency meeting of the 11-member UN Security Council which convened in an atmosphere of crisis and shock following reports from the Congo that Lumumba, deposed premier, was killed by tribesmen after escaping from prison.

After hearing the Soviet charge the Security Council adjourned until Wednesday to let governments reappraise the situation in the Congo.

Hammarskjöld opened the meeting with a call for an impartial investigation—which UN officers in the Congo have already attempted to begin—but Zorin reacted angrily with the statement "we have not the slightest confidence in the secretary-general or his Congo command after all that has been committed in the Congo."

KENNEDY SHOCKED

The U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson, speaking before Zorin, noted that President Kennedy had expressed shock over Lumumba's death. Stevenson said the action shows "how far we still have to go."

The warning was delivered in a note from Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the UN Congo mission, transmitted to UN authorities in Katanga Sunday.

The spokesman said about 2,000 of Tsonombe's troops, led by European officers, now appear engaged in the thrust, burning villages in the way.

STAMFORD, England (Reuters) — A British peer Sunday invited an American firm which is investigating his connections with Communist China to search his stately home.

World Hails Russian Feat

LONDON (UPI) — Western scientists today termed the Soviet Union's piggy-back rocket shot at Venus a remarkable achievement that may help plumb the mysteries of earth's cloud-covered sister planet.

"This venture demands 400 times as much precision as their previous shot at the moon," said Prof. Jan H. Oort, director of the Leyden Observatory in Holland.

"I am led to believe that the Russians must have developed a highly reliable system of guiding a rocket while it is travelling through space."

French space expert Prof. Alexandre Ananov said Soviet scientists seemed to be trying to leapfrog space achievements by "firing big space ships with room for two or three men far out into the solar system."

He said it appeared to him that the Russians might leave to the United States the task of putting the first man in space close to earth.

Finnish astronomy Prof. Gustaf Jaernefelt said the feat would be "most remarkable" if the rocket ship were able to take pictures to show what kind of a surface Venus has.

"We don't know yet whether it will succeed," he said.

Prof. A. C. Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Radio Telescope, described the shot as "fantastic."

"They have entered on an exploit which has long been expected, and good luck to them," he said.

Prof. Ananov said the Venus project had tremendous propaganda value for the Russians.

$8,000 FOR LUMUMBA

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Patrice Lumumba is dead, the Katanga government announced today and the African villagers who killed him have received a reward of $8,000.

The interior ministry of this secessionist province declared the Congo's deposed premier was "massacred Sunday morning" along with two aides said to have fled with him three days earlier.

Godefroid Munongo, the interior minister, told reporters: "I will speak frankly. If people accused us of killing Lumumba, I will reply: 'Prove it!'"

The effect of the slayings was to bring the long-brewing Congo situation to a new crisis holding the threat of civil war. It came as Katanga was flexing its military muscles with a drive which brought United Nations warning.

The interior minister declined to name the village where Lumumba died.

POSSIBLE REPRISALS

"We do not want the Africans of the tribe which killed Lumumba to be identified because they might be the subject of eventual reprisals by Lumumbists," said Munongo.

"We cannot honestly blame these people because they have rid the Congo, and the whole world, of a problem which certain people have exaggerated and a problem which menaced the existence of humanity."

This village will be given the total of 400,000 francs ($8,000) promised by the Katanga cabinet for the capture of the three men, and I shall say no more about it."

Munongo called Lumumba a criminal responsible for tens of thousands of deaths in Kasai and Katanga provinces. He became premier when The Congo attained independence from Belgium last June 30. Soon Soviet technicians and equipment were flowing into the Congo, along with a UN peace force of 20,000 men which Lumumba at first welcomed, then repudiated. In September, President Joseph Kasavubu, after weeks of uncertainty, threw Lumumba out of office and sent him to jail for trial on charges of crimes against the nation.

But even in detention Lumumba made his weight felt, and at the time of his death his followers were in control of about a third of The Congo.
